Mr. Astor Will Fly Wanted, a Gandhi Miracle Cleveland's Birthday Mr. Bryan's 5 Fingers

—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Mr. Vincent Astor, who has ambition, in spite of a large fortune, has bought a fast English flying boat. From his place at Southampton, to his place at Newport, the boat will carry him and four friends in 25 minutes. It takes several hours on his yacht Nourmahal. While it makes no real difference to him or anybody on earth how long it takes Mr. Astor to go from Newport to Southampton, the news is important.

Young Mr. Vanderbilt helped the automobile industry, when he flew around aimlessly in his "White Ghost." The nobles of France helped Parmentier and the King to introduce potato eating among the common people, when they wore potato blossoms in their buttonholes. Mr. Astor will help the flying machine industry, and hasten the day of the flying flivver, as Roman emperors helped along cheap porcelain baths for small flats, when they thought they were only self indulgent. The fad of the rich man today is the necessity of the poor man tomorrow.

Flying machines, eventually, will be cheaper than the cheapest automobiles, and upkeep far cheaper, with no friction on tires. The day is coming when a man will go to California in his own flying machine, with his whole family, for five dollars or less, and between rising and setting of the sun. What a crowd in Los Angeles then.

Read what Commander Zachary Landdowne of the U. S. navy writes in "U. S. Air Service" about the wonderful helium, and you realize how cost can be reduced.

First they found the elemental gas in the spectroscope. Then got a little of it, at great expense, and found that it would not burn—making it safe for balloons.

Helium cost at first $1,750 per cubic foot. Now it costs ten cents, and it will be cheaper.

When more able men imitate Ford, striving to produce cheaply, instead of striving to get the highest price, world conditions will improve.

Gandhi is in jail—and the great Indian revolution has not yet came. England understands running big sections of the earth. Gandhi praises the justice of British, after confessing attempts to overthrow English rule. If he had confessed to such an attempt against a native Rajah, in old days, an elephant would have been led out to step on his chest, and flatten his aspirations literally.

The natives are looking for a miracle—three-quarters of them are sunk in superstition and Paganism, worshipping small stones, painted red, and all sorts of demons. They circulated a picture showing Gandhi holding up the Himalayan Mountain range, on his finger tip, with words of scorn for the English that could not climb Mt. Everest. But the English will climb that mountain, and Gandhi will NOT gratify his followers by walking out of prison, balancing the Himalayans on his pointing finger.

The first revolution needed in India is one to clear superstition from the Indian brain. You cannot judge the 300,000,000 by a few sophisticated swami, cultivating the credulity of feeble minded Occidental women.

Last Saturday was Grover Cleveland's birthday. Did you notice any fuss about it anywhere? There was none.

Every President has his chance to make his name remembered, but of all the lot, only three have a real place in men's minds—Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. Roosevelt deserves gratitude for his energy in putting through the Panama Canal, taking the land necessary for the job. But he will slip out of mind. And in another generation it will still be Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln—unless some one comes up meanwhile. Time sifts them out, plays no favorites, buries nonentities remorselessly.

Sunday was the birthday of William Jennings Bryan, sincere, useful soul. He celebrated with a speech denouncing evolution. As he spoke, just at the bottom of his waistcoat, on the right side of his body, there snuggled a tiny vermiform appendix that could have refuted all his arguments. Evolution has made it vestigial, only a nuisance, but in some of Mr. Bryan's herbivorous relatives that appendix is more than twenty feet long—as compared with three or four inches in humans.

And the ear with which Mr. Bryan listened to applause is only an evolution of the gill, with which his ancestor, the fish, allowed the water to escape after extracting the oxygen.

The hand with which Mr. Bryan points and waves has five fingers, because that was the number of toes on the foot of the salamander in the carboniferous age—millions of years ago.

It's a pity, too, for the five fingers gave us the imperfect decimal system. Six fingers would have made it duodecimal, much better, as mathematicians will tell Mr. Bryan. Ten has

CONGRESS URGED TO HASTEN ACTION

Noted Orators Plead Veterans' Cause; Justice for Soldiers Asked

Five thousand citizens of Greater Boston today braved a chill March wind to demand a soldiers' bonus at the Boston American mass meeting in front of the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common.

The meeting, the second held within two weeks by this paper, for the purpose of speeding up the action of Congress in passing an adjusted compensation bill for former service men and women, exceeded all expectations in size and enthusiasm.

Acting Mayor David J. Brickley, first and chief speaker at the gathering in the absence of Mayor James M. Curley, was welcomed with tumultuous cheering and shouting when he declared that the "insatability of the congressional leaders in Washington and their failure to pass a bonus bill was one of the most regrettable features of recent American public life."

He was cheered anew when he pointed out that the United States alone of the great allied nations had failed to provide a bonus for the men who had won her fight.

WARNING TO GILLETT.

Judge Michael J. Murray of the Boston Municipal Court also received a rousing welcome by the great throng. Mayor Harland A. McPhetres of Lynn was cheered to the echo, as were every one of the long list of prominent men gathered to urge upon Congress the need for immediate action to meet the emergency.

Judge Murray warned Speaker Gillett that "if the delay in the passage of the bonus bill long continues he would hear from the people of Massachusetts in such a way that it

LETTER IS READ IN SENATE

No Hidden U. S.-British Agreement Aimed at Japan, Secretary Declares

By International News Service.

Washington, March 21.—Secretary of State Hughes branded today as "absolutely false" the charge made in the Senate that the United States and Great Britain entered into a secret understanding aimed at Japan during the Washington conference.

In a letter he addressed to Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, Hughes declared, "We have no secret understandings or agreements with Great Britain in relation to the Four-Power Treaty or any other matter."

The Hughes letter which Lodge read into the record as soon as the Senate reconvened, was the result of a statement attributed by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, to Paul P. Cravath, New York lawyer, and one of counsel for J. P. Morgan & Co., that the United States and Great Britain had made a secret pact in order to keep a whip hand over Japan with an Anglo-American fleet in the Pacific and the Far East.

Lodge also read a long telegram from Cravath in which the New Yorker declared the charge was "un-

CITY NEEDS FIVE CENT FARE

Necessary to Business Expansion of Boston, Mayor Curley Declares

By JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor of Boston.

Volumes have been written about Boston's transportation problems, and the present exorbitant rate of fare has been upheld by analysts as eminently fitting and proper in view of the cost of labor and materials, interest on dividends, rolling stock, depreciation and a thousand other equally specious arguments.

Needless to say, every one of these plausible statements emanates either directly or indirectly, from individuals or interests who seek to profit by the unjust rate of fare which prevails over four-fifths of the Boston Elevated Railway system today.

Methinks they do protest too much! For the most part, these same men are riding back and forth to their places of business in their automobiles, with no knowledge of conditions actually prevailing on our street railway lines beyond that measured by their own bank accounts.

If their balance is large, the system is good; if their balance dwin-

Walkout Spreads After Cotton Mills There Cut Wages of 6,200 Workers

Fawtucket, March 21.—Extension of the textile strikes in New England to Lawrence was announced today by President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America. After learning of announcements of wage reductions in Lawrence cotton mills the textile leader said he had instructed Organizer Thomas Regan of Lowell to proceed to Lawrence at once, declare a strike and form a strike organization.

Lawrence, March 21.—The industrial situation here reached an acute crisis today when the Pacific Mills, employing 5,000, and the Everett Mills, employing 1,200, announced a wage cut, effective next Monday, and the Arlington Mills, employing 5,000, posted notices of an indefinite shutdown, beginning tonight.

The wage reduction was predicted in the Boston American a week ago. The action of the Arlington Mills is generally looked upon here as a lierounded" and that he had been misquoted by the Idaho Senator.

HUGHES DENIES SECRET PACT BETWEEN AMERICA AND ENGLAND

LETTER IS READ IN SENATE

The Hughes letter was as follows:

"Washington, March 21.

"My Dear Senator:

"I notice that the latest charge in the course of the debate over the four-power treaty is that there is a secret agreement or understanding between this government and Great Britain with respect to Pacific matters.

"Any such statement is absolutely false. We have no secret understanding or agreements with Great Britain in relation to the four-power treaty or any other matter. In my letter to Senator Underwood on March 11, in relation to the four-power treaty, I said:

"'There are no secret notes or understandings.'

"Permit me to express the hope that the American delegates will be saved further aspersion upon their veracity and honor.

"Faithfully yours,

"CHARLES E. HUGHES.

"To Henry Cabot Lodge."

Senator Borah was quick to call in question the denials of both Hughes and Cravath.

CHALLENGES DANIELS.

The Idaho senator read copious excerpts from a printed pamphlet intended for private circulation, which he explained bore the title, "Proceedings of the Council on Foreign Relations—Comments Upon the Conference on the Limitation of Armament and Far Eastern Questions."

The title page, Borah stated, bore the following: "Presiding judge, John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain; speaker, Norman H. Davis, former Under Secretary of State; discussion led by Frank L. Cravath, held at the Hotel Astor (New York City) February 17."

All Agreements Made Public, Says White House

Washington, March 21.—The American government entered into no agreements or understandings during the Arms Conference that were not embodied in treaty form and made public, it was stated today at the White House in connection with charges in the Senate that an understanding had been reached between the United States and Great Britain relative to action in the Pacific.

The charge of a secret agreement was described as outrageous and unthinkable. It was further declared inconceivable that the American government should invite Japan to a conference and then be perfidious enough to turn around and make a secret agreement antagonistic to her.

HARDING OPPOSES CHANGE FOR TREATIES

Washington, March 21.—(By International News Service.)—Suggestions that the Constitution of the United States be changed in order to permit majority ratification of treaties by the Senate do not meet with President Harding's approval. He informed callers this afternoon that he does not believe the Constitution should be changed in this respect and he believes the two-thirds majority necessary to treaty ratification to be a good rule.

JURORS PICKED FOR TRIAL OF 'TEX' RICKARD

Foreman Best Is Taken Ill and Another Is Selected in His Place

New York, March 21.—Selection of jurors was completed today at the trial of "Tex" Rickard, fight promoter. Rickard was charged with assault on Fifteen-year-old Sam Schoenfeld.

The foreman of the jury, Samuel J. Best, who had been accepted yesterday, was excused from service today on account of his physical condition. He had been ill all night. Immediately afterward Thomas H. Hoy was accepted as juror and made foreman in place of Best.

Rickard was in good spirits when he came into court and smiled as he chatted with the reporters. A cell mate in Tombs prison last night was Alfred E. Lindsay, former juror, who is accused of fleecing society women out of large sums in stock deals.

It is understood a group of Rickard's wealthy friends have agreed to make up bail to the amount of $500,000, if necessary, to get Rickard out of the Tombs.

John Ringling, who was one of Kermit Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, are among witnesses summoned for the defence.

1,000 SOLDIERS REACH PORTLAND FROM RH

Portland, Me., March 21.—"Welcome Home" was extended today to troops of the Fifth Regiment of Infantry returning on the transport Cantigny, from Germany. The battalions under command of Colonel Harry E. Knight, comprising 46 officers and 976 enlisted men, were debarked. They were sent to Forts Preble, McKinley and Levett where they will be stationed. Special attention was given to 37 women and children dependents of officers and the families of enlisted men. "It's good to be home again," said Colonel Knight, "but I should judge that about 99 per cent. of the officers and men and their wives would have been eminently satisfied to have remained in Germany indefinitely."

MUST ASK TO BRING DEB BACK BEFORE MARCH 1

Washington, March 20.—Rooms from married relatives for the return of American dead overseas will not be favorably considered after March 31, the War Department announced today. The government's action, it was stated, had afforded all reasonable consideration to interested relatives in permitting them to make the choice of years in which to decide whether the bodies would be returned to this country or remain in France.

BRITAIN ACTS TO AVERT WAR IN ULSTER

Garrisons Strengthened in Northern Ireland, Cabinet Leader Tells Commons

London, March 21 (By International News Service!—The British government today intervened to prevent war between the Irish Free State and Ulster province. Sir Lenning Worthington-Evans, secretary of state for war in the British Cabinet, announced in the House of Commons that the military garrisons in the north of Ireland were being strengthened and that efforts were being made to restore order in Ulster.

Orangemen and Sinn Feiners in Clashes

Belfast, March 21 (By International News Service!—Another wave of terror rolled along the Ulster frontier today.

Armed policemen and Sinn Feiners clashed at numerous points.

The Ministry for Home Affairs in the Ulster government made the formal charge today that the Sinn Feiners are organizing an army to attempt to overthrow the Belfast regime.

Raiders attacked Glengreen Lodge, in County Donegal, but the owner, John Allingham, a Unionist leader, and his tenants stood off the attackers.

A special constable was killed in a clash with Republicans. A wave of incendiarism has swept Belfast.

The British government may carry out military intervention to prevent war between Ulster and the Irish Free State, but this will be done only as a last resort.

Bridges and railroads have been dynamited in the northern part of County Tyrone. Wire cutters were active in Belfast and vicinity and border counties were almost cut off by afternoon.

There were numerous fires. The damage done by incendiaries was estimated at nearly $200,000.

Menace of Civil War Looms Over Ireland

London, March 21 (By the Associated Press).—The dangers of the situation in Ireland are emphasized by the morning newspapers, several of which take the view that little more will be needed to start civil war.

Sniping between the entrenched forces on each side of the Ulster border has been going on for several days, and yesterday machine guns were reported to have been brought into action. Meanwhile, disturbances continue throughout the six southern areas of Ulster.

In consequence of the continued lawlessness in Belfast itself, the carnival of the city was suspended last night their determination to cease work today on the ground that they were insufficiently protected from the gunmen.

Belfast Carters Quit; Gunmen Kill Victims

Belfast, March 21 (By the Associated Press).—James Magee was shot by gunmen in Hardings street, last night. Military forces were sent to the scene, but met with a fusillade of revolver shots under cover of which the assassins escaped. Magee died this morning.

As the day advanced the carters' strike became practically complete.

Raiders last evening surrounded Glengean Lodge, the home of John H. Allingham, near Trillick, County Tyrone, close to the Free State border. Allingham opened fire and drove them off.

Samuel Laird, a worker on the Allingham farm, who also was an Ulster "B" special constable, was shot and killed by the raiders.

After describing the shooting, the Belfast Telegraph says the burning of isolated Unionist houses was subsequently begun.

The house of John Stewart in the Dromore district was visited by raiders, and Stewart, who is seventy years old and lives with his wife and two sons, the latter members of the "B" special constabulary, was shot in defending his home.

The raiders than set the house on fire, together with the farm buildings. Stewart was taken to the Tyrone County Hospital in a serious condition.

Strong police forces were being rushed this afternoon to the Dromore district. Five houses were burned near Omagh.

Many other houses, some of the most substantial farmhouses of the countryside, were set on fire and destroyed.

In Trillick, Tyrone, the situation became serious. The lights sent up from the police barracks attracted attention of a mobile platoon at Dromore, which hurried to the town. Terrorism was so widespread and the number of men engaged in attacks against Loyalist homes was so large that the Crown forces were able to check incendiary activities.

OWNER OF MALDEN TEA ROOM IS BANKRUPT

May Belle Brown, proprietor of a tea room at No. 635 Salem street, Malden, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court, giving liabilities as $2,834.16 and assets as nothing. A creditors' petition was filed against the Andrews Shoe Co., Inc., of Lynn, the claims totaling $1,638.

Richard A. Jones Dead

Richard A. Jones, who served as superintendent of streets from 1890 until 1918, when he retired on a pension, died today at his home on Banks street, Waltham. He was one of the founders of the Massachusetts Highway Superintendents' Association. Mr. Jones is survived by a wife, two sons, Fred and Harry, and a daughter, Mrs. Jennie M. Gibbs.

SAMMY AND HIS PALS

GIRL SUICIDE ONCE HELD ON DRUNK CHARGE

was released upon the arrival of her attorney.

Attorney Charles F. Rowley, her counsel, had the case placed on file in Brookline Court the next day.

"It was a case of overzealousness on the part of a police officer who was doing his best to do his duty," said Attorney Rowley today.

"Miss Clark had been visiting friends. Her car was left standing on a p. m. until midnight. When she started to drive home with some friends the battery had run out and the lights would not work.

"One of the boys with her went to a garage to summon a taxi, another remaining with her. An officer approached and reprimanded her for not having the lights on her car lighted. She was a high-spirited girl and resented what he said. There were words. The officer threatened to arrest her for driving under the influence of liquor. She replied she was not operating a car.

PLACED UNDER ARREST.

"The officer then arrested her on a charge of drunkenness. I am satisfied now and was satisfied at the time that the officer, acting the unlighted car, considered the party suspicious, and placed that charge against the girl simply to hold her to make an investigation.

"I arrived at the police station within half an hour. Miss Clark was not drunk.

Interest in Miss Clark's suicide, which was followed by the sensational suicide of Otto Haldor Larsen, her Tech senior suitor, received impetus today when it was learned that District Attorney O'Brien may start a fresh investigation into the double tragedy.

Should he do so, he would summon as witnesses all those who attended the party at which Miss Clark drank cyanide. A bottle of which had been given her by young Larsen, and the real story of what took place there would become a matter of official record.

Conflicting stories of what took place at the "death party," the final revel given by the young Back Bay beauty, have left several important points in doubt.

Although in a brief interview shortly after the suicide of Miss Clark and before the suicide of Larsen, Bayard Wharton, the wealthy Harvard man reported to have been engaged to Miss Clark, stated that at the time she drank the fatal cup Miss Clark was alone with Larsen, Miss Anna Cosskie of Worcester denies this.

MISS COSSKIE'S STORY.

Miss Cosskie, the only woman beside Miss Clark at the party, said today that both Wharton and Larsen were in the room when Miss Clark when the last named took poison.

"When Pauline took the poison, Mr. Christie and I were in the kitchen," she declared. "Pauline was sitting in the other room talking with Wharton and Larsen.

"I heard a cry.

"'Ann get me some water, please, Pauline has taken something,' Wharton called.

"I rushed into the room with the water. Pauline lay unconscious in the chair. The others were trying to revive her."

Miss Cosskie also contradicted several of the statements made by Larsen in the written confession found on his body after his suicide in the Fenway.

She denied his statement that any of the men at the party had gone out for liquor. She asserted Miss Clark had hurt her ankle dancing and that the men went out to get bandages, with which she and Wharton bandaged the injured limb.

Norway May Move Students From 'Wicked' Boston

Norwegian students may be transferred to institutions of learning situated in cities "less wicked" than Boston.

This became known today when it was learned that Robert Sletten, Norwegian consul in Boston, has gone to New York to confer with Consul-General Fay after investigating the suicide of Otto Haldor Larsen which followed that of Pauline Virginia Clark.

It is known that the student life here will be the topic of their discussion. Middle Western and German universities are mentioned as possibilities.

J. R. Torrey, like Miss Cosskie a resident of Worcester, and a guest at the party, sustained Miss Cosskie's statements in regard to the fact that none of the party had gone out for liquor.

Robert T. Christie, the fourth man at the party, is twenty-five years old and single, it was learned today. He is a salesman for a tire concern, and travels through eastern Massachusetts, maintaining an apartment in New York. He drove from Worcester with Wharton and Miss Cosskie to attend the party.

Christie, Wharton, Torrey and Miss Cosskie will all be questioned by District Attorney O'Brien, should he decide on further investigation. Whether such an investigation will be held will depend largely upon the report made to him by Medical Examiner Magrath. It is not improbable, however, that he will question all those who attended the death party, anyway.

ANNOUNCED ENGAGEMENT.

Miss Cosskie made it known that at the fatal party Miss Clark announced that she was engaged to young Bayard Wharton of Harvard. Young Wharton "smiled she-plshly and said nothing," according to the Worcester girl.

"Pauline's announcement of her coming marriage to Wharton was a surprise," said Miss Cosskie. "I think she had planned the party especially to tell us and to celebrate the event. I don't think she intended it as a suicide party.

"Pauline was in the highest spirits. In fact, with the exception of Larsen, who was moody and morose, as I have always seen him, every body was gay and happy. Everybody congratulated Pauline and Wharton."

Before sealing the room occupied by Larsen on Newbury street, not far from Miss Clark's apartment, Medical Examiner Magrath examined the contents. During this search he discovered a love letter and a picture of a woman and a fair-haired little boy, indicating that Larsen may have left a wife and child in his native Norway.

The finding of these throws a new light on a statement written by Larsen in his confession to the effect that he knew Wharton "able and myself unable to marry Miss Clark."

Up to the time he has understood to refer to Wharton's wealth. As Larsen's people in Norway are also reported to be wealthy, he may well have referred to some other bar to marriage.

If he was married, Larsen apparently did not confide it to his friends. Miss Clark, his fiancee, a mate friend of Miss Clark, declared: "I know of no reason why Larsen could not have married her, as he indicated in his farewell letter. I believe he was as free to wed as was Wharton. I cannot for the life of me understand that reference."

THUKU INTERNED BY BRITISH IN AFRICA

London, March 21.—The Indian agitator Thuku, whose recent arrest at Nairobi, in British East Africa, led to riots in which more than a score were killed, has been interned, said a Central News dispatch from Nairobi today. Other leaders in the disorders are held for trial.

MISS HUEBEL TESTIFIES IN WILL FIGHT

Newport, R. I., March 21.—Pretty twenty-two-year-old Irene Huebel, Boston stenographer, took the stand today as a witness at the hearing of her suit to break the will of her aunt, Mrs. Amelia B. Munchinger, of Newport's "fashionable boarding house lady," who left the bulk of her estate to Burton J. Baldwin, who was called her "perfect man."

Miss Huebel identified a number of letters which her attorney, William H. McSorley, introduced in evidence, as having been written by Mrs. Muenchinger to her in 1920. One of these letters read:

"I am sending you a little spending money. You must have clothes enough to wear, little girl. I do so want my Irene to be very smart and to be somebody."

Frank J. Watts, former man of all work at the Muenchinger boarding house, told of the arrival there of Baldwin, said of the latter's swift rise in favor "until he was the star boarder and took his meals in the privat dining room with Mrs. Muenchinger."

"When Baldwin went away," testified Watts, "everybody was sorry, and then they said he was coming back for Christmas. But he could not get away. You should have seen the preparations they made for him. Mrs. Muenchinger had a pig stuffed and packed in a big box with Christmas and other presents and sent by parcel post to him in New York."

When Baldwin finally did pay them a visit, Watts testified, Mrs. Muenchinger sent Watts to Fall River in a taxicab to meet him, and sent along a flask of whiskey to be sure Baldwin would not catch cold.

Attorney McSorley said, in his opening address:

"We will show that Baldwin and Mrs. Muenchinger took trips together to Atlantic City, New London and New York. His clothes were packed in her trunk. We will prove that Mrs. Muenchinger loved her niece dearly. But now this little girl is penniless, though the testatrix, in her will, requested Baldwin to continue the care of her. We will prove that this is not the last will and testament of Mrs. Muenchinger, but was made by reason of undue influence on the part of Burton J. Baldwin."

Edith May Taylor, the first witness, who for many years was a boarder at the boarding house, testified that Baldwin came to the house first as a guest in 1915. Later, she said, he went to New York, but returned in 1916 and soon became "managing director" of the place. Mrs. Muenchinger regarded Baldwin as a "perfect man," the witness said.

MRS. STETSON'S LAWYER DENIED AN INJUNCTION

New York, March 21.—The petition of Walter Fairchild, attorney for Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, formerly a leading figure in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of this city, for an injunction restraining the trustees of that body from ousting him from membership, was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Newburger.

"The writ will not grant injunctive relief," he said, "while proceedings are pending before a duly constituted body. A plaintiff must exhaust his remedy within the corporation before a court of equity will grant relief."

INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL PLANT IS SHUT DOWN

Chicago March 21.—The local plant of the United States Industrial Alcohol Company today was temporarily closed by Federal prohibition officials, pending an investigation to determine if the company has violated the laws pertaining to manufacture of alcohol.

WOMAN SUICIDE BY POISON IN SOUTH END

Mrs. Wellman of Lynn Drank Veronal, Says Medical Examiner Watters

Mrs. Sadie L. Wellman of Lynn, committed suicide by swallowing veronal, according to Medical Examiner William Watters.

Recently removed from No. 1st Washington street, South End, Mrs. Wellman was taken to City Hospital believed to be suffering from blood poisoning. She died on March 11 never having regained conscious ness.

The theory that the woman's death was brought on by an over dose of veronal is based on a letter written by her to a relative and now in possession of the medical examiner. In it, according to Dr. Watters, the woman described her determination to "end it all," at the same time asking forgiveness of her relatives.

Mrs. Francis L. Gray of No. 11 Addison street, Lynn, daughter of Mrs. Wellman, was to have met her mother at an incoming train due from Portland, Me., on March 10. Thinking that she might have missed finding her mother owing to the large crowd in the depot, Mrs. Gray left for her home in Lynn.

BOSTON ARTIST WEDS SECRETLY IN PARIS

New York, March 21.—The secret marriage in Paris of Miss Margaret A. Train, New York debutante who went to that city to study art, and Reginald Embree of Boston, an other art student, was announced in the enlargement received here today. Mrs. Embree, who was considered one of the most beautiful girls in New York society, is the daughter of former Assistant District Attorney John Train and Mrs. Amelia B. Munchinger, Newport's "fashionable boarding house lady," who left the bulk of her estate to Burton J. Baldwin, who was called her "perfect man."

Miss Train identified a number of letters which her attorney, William H. McSorley, introduced in evidence, as having been written by Mrs. Muenchinger to her in 1920. One of these letters read:

"I am sending you a little spending money. You must have clothes enough to wear, little girl. I do so want my Irene to be very smart and to be somebody."

Frank J. Watts, former man of all work at the Muenchinger boarding house, told of the arrival there of Baldwin, said of the latter's swift rise in favor "until he was the star boarder and took his meals in the privat dining room with Mrs. Muenchinger."

"When Baldwin went away," testified Watts, "everybody was sorry, and then they said he was coming back for Christmas. But he could not get away. You should have seen the preparations they made for him. Mrs. Muenchinger had a pig stuffed and packed in a big box with Christmas and other presents and sent by parcel post to him in New York."

When Baldwin finally did pay them a visit, Watts testified, Mrs. Muenchinger sent Watts to Fall River in a taxicab to meet him, and sent along a flask of whiskey to be sure Baldwin would not catch cold.

Attorney McSorley said, in his opening address:

"We will show that Baldwin and Mrs. Muenchinger took trips together to Atlantic City, New London and New York. His clothes were packed in her trunk. We will prove that Mrs. Muenchinger loved her niece dearly. But now this little girl is penniless, though the testatrix, in her will, requested Baldwin to continue the care of her. We will prove that this is not the last will and testament of Mrs. Muenchinger, but was made by reason of undue influence on the part of Burton J. Baldwin."

Edith May Taylor, the first witness, who for many years was a boarder at the boarding house, testified that Baldwin came to the house first as a guest in 1915. Later, she said, he went to New York, but returned in 1916 and soon became "managing director" of the place. Mrs. Muenchinger regarded Baldwin as a "perfect man," the witness said.

MRS. STETSON'S LAWYER DENIED AN INJUNCTION

New York, March 21.—The petition of Walter Fairchild, attorney for Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, formerly a leading figure in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of this city, for an injunction restraining the trustees of that body from ousting him from membership, was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Newburger.

"The writ will not grant injunctive relief," he said, "while proceedings are pending before a duly constituted body. A plaintiff must exhaust his remedy within the corporation before a court of equity will grant relief."

MRS. McCORMICK SEES DISASTER WHEN HER DAUGHTER WEDS

'SLAVERY' TO QUIT CLASS'

History Proves Error of Leaving Own Clan, Says Mathilde's Mother

Chicago, March 21.—Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., leading the progress of women, told representatives of many women's organizations here that "if a woman marries outside her own class or faith she will be a slave. History proves it so."

The engagement of Mrs. McCormick's sixteen-year-old daughter Mathilde to Max Oser, Swiss riding academy proprietor, recently was announced.

The meeting at which Mrs. McCormick spoke was preliminary to the Women's Progress Exposition to be held here June 3 to 10, of which Mrs. McCormick will be general chairman.

"In olden times," Mrs. McCormick said, "if a man were bored with the women of his own tribe, he went and stole a wife from another clan."

The stolen bride had a sorry time of it, according to Mrs. McCormick, who said the women of the men's tribe always hated the alien bride, who consequently had to depend for happiness entirely upon her husband, to whom she was virtually a slave. From this condition, she said, there grew up a kind of serfdom for women.

This period of serfdom was an era of down curves for women, she said, but it was sandwiched in between two up curves, the ancient and modern.

"Women are now victors. But they are much more than victors," Mrs. McCormick said, "for they have done much more than fight for their place, which has been won through sociological development and growth.

"All the modern woman wants is to be let alone, to develop, demonstrate, and to expand," she said. "Mother love is important, but it is not everything. Woman's universal love is bigger."

GIRL USED AS "STOOL" TO ARREST DRUG PEDLAR

A twenty-four-year-old girl used as a "stool pigeon" by detectives tripped up "Pat the Pedlar." Police uncovered a dope "nest" in upper Tremont street, grabbed "Pat" and after a fight prevented him from swallowing the evidence consisting, they allege, of cocaine. In Municipal Court today John Chunisky, twenty-four years old, of No. 3 Rutland square, South End, was held in $5,000 on the charge of having narcotics to sell. Chunisky is known as "Pat." He was arrested when the "stool" pigeon, Tremont street broke up and the beautiful "stool pigeon" led the way to No. 30 Harrison avenue.

ASKS RIGHT TO PAY CASH IN PRUDENTIAL

Liquidating Agent Says 30 Per Cent. Is Ready for Savings Department

Permission to pay dividends of thirty per cent. to savings depositors in the closed Prudential Trust Company and dividends of 16 2-3 per cent. to commercial depositors was sought by Attorney John E. Hannigan of Judge Carroll in the Supreme Court today.

Attorney Hannigan is liquidating agent of the trust company. He petitioned the court on behalf of Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen. Attorney Hannigan told the court savings depositors had been paid two dividends totalling forty-five per cent, and that the bank commissioner had on hand enough cash to pay savings depositors in full and then have enough remaining to pay commercial depositors 16 2-3 per cent.

Judge Carroll thought a notice should first be issued. Attorney Hannigan argued that it had never been required. The matter was taken under advisement.

PICKETS DRIVEN BACK BY MILITIA AND SHERIFFS

Parade of R. I. Strikers Is Broken Up at Mill in Pawtucket

Pawtucket, R. I., March 21.—In an effort to test Sheriff Jonathan Andrews' order against mass picketing, over 100 strikers assembled near the plant of the Jenckes Spinning Company today and proceeded to march in single file towards the mill gate.

The deputy sheriffs quickly stopped the parade, informed the leaders that such a gathering was a violation of the sheriff's order and, with the assistance of the militia on duty, drove the crowd some distance from the mill.

Afterwards about thirty-five strikers were allowed to do picket duty near the mill gates.

R. I. Governor Sends Artillerymen Home

Providence, March 21.—National Guard troops on duty in the textile mill strike areas in Rhode Island were further reduced today when Governor Sam Bosci ordered three of the Coast Artillery companies on duty in Pawtucket and Central Falls home.

The units dismissed were from Providence, Westerly and East Greenwich. There are left in Pawtucket one Woonsocket Coast Artillery company and details from two Providence companies, a total of about 150 men.

Blackstone valley strikers today continued their mass picketing at several mills.

"Greene realized that if the Rhode Island manufacturers could beat down the 48-hour week gained by the economic strength of the United Textile Workers on February 1, 1919, it would go a long way toward breaking the 48-hour law which was enacted in Massachusetts several months after we won it.

"This also applies to the State of New Hampshire and the city of Lowell which followed the lead of the aforementioned gullible Rhode Island mill baron.

Greene being one of the prime movers of reducing the existing standard of living, and being a lover of dividends was reprimanded by his friends in Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Lowell, and has been forced to take the present step regardless of sacrifice.

CUNNINGHAM GAVE TREE TO CHILDREN

Ten-Year-Old Boy Testifies at Trial of Millionaire Who Is Charged With Murder

A human-interest touch was injected today into the trial in the Dedham Court of Caleb Loring Cunningham, Milton millionaire, charged with the murder of John Johnson, Quincy laborer.

In the midst of testimony being offered by defence witnesses that Cunningham was in tears or his wife from touches in the head received by the year-old boy was led to the witness stand.

He was James Dustin Elwell of Walnut road, East Milton.

"I went to Mr. Cunningham's home with my playmate Katherine Lee last before Christmas, 1920, to ask him if we could cut down a Christmas tree," he testified.

"What did Mr. Cunningham say to your request?" asked an attorney.

"He said: 'I love all my trees as if they were my children, but you may have one if it will make you happy.'"

Other witnesses today were Edward P. Ledwith of Milton, superintendent of the Mattapan postoffice, a neighbor of Cunningham; Peleg Brownell of Hingham, and Mrs. Muffler, a vigorous old farmer who recalled the shooting of Cunningham's uncle by poachers in 1885 and Richard C. Ware of No. 384 Adams street, Milton, a nephew of Cunningham.

They testified to various conversations with Cunningham in which the gentleman farmer had told of poor protection to his property, frequent visits from poachers who cut down trees ruthlessly and at having been shot at several times.

Once, a nephew testified, Cunningham had said he expected to have a bullet some day reach him.

To Brownell he said the former testified: "I'm afraid I'll get the same dose some day my uncle did."

6,200 AFFECTED BY LAWRENCE WAGE CUT

tical move to forestall a strike, the mill owners fearing that notice of a reduction would precipitate the walkout. The Arlington has been running but a few days a week for many weeks. Lack of business is the official explanation for the shutdown.

Although the amount of the wage reduction at the Pacific was not definitely announced, it is said to be 20 per cent. The steady decline of business and poor market conditions was given as the reason for the cut in wages.

When reductions were made in Manchester and Nashua, the rate of labor were increased from 48 to 54 hours a week. This is a step which, under the Massachusetts law, can not be taken. This means that the Massachusetts mill owners will not be able to offset the pay reduction by working a longer week.

The Lawrence Duck Mills, employing several hundred, announced that it, too, would close its doors for a week, because the 48-hour law made it impossible to complete with South mill mills which are operated under a 54-hour week.

Declares Real Issue Is 48-Hour Law

Following is the statement made today by Thomas F. McMahon announcing that all union workers in the Pacific Mill of Lawrence would be called out March 27:

"The statement made several weeks ago by Edward Green, an official of the Pacific Mills advocated the necessity of cutting wages owing to Southern competition.

"He was immediately answered by Mr. McAdams of the Southern Manufacturers' Association, who said the operators of the North, owing to their peculiar climatic conditions and to the fact that the cotton workers are employed in a fancy cotton product, should be paid higher wages.

"He showed clearly the difference in the living costs in the North and South and showed that while the Northern operatives were being paid $4 per week more than the South the living cost in the South was $7 lower.

"Edward Greene replied in an address to manufacturers, which Rhode Island manufacturers followed the lead of Greene and showed their loyalty to his foresight. They saw a great opportunity was presented to them to cut wages and start a destruction of the 48-hour week, which is the real issue in this fight.

"Greene realized that if the Rhode Island manufacturers could beat down the 48-hour week gained by the economic strength of the United Textile Workers on February 1, 1919, it would go a long way toward breaking the 48-hour law which was enacted in Massachusetts several months after we won it.

"This also applies to the State of New Hampshire and the city of Lowell which followed the lead of the aforementioned gullible Rhode Island mill baron.

Greene being one of the prime movers of reducing the existing standard of living, and being a lover of dividends was reprimanded by his friends in Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Lowell, and has been forced to take the present step regardless of sacrifice.

DEFENCE RESTS IN WARNER TRIAL

Failure to Produce Hathaway as Witness Causes Comment Among Spectators

Taunton, March 21.—Joseph E. Warner, ex-Lieutenant Governor, and Alvan T. Fuller for $100,000 for alleged slander, denied in court today that he had stood in front behind a tree at Salem on the night of September 2, 1920, when Fuller was delivering a campaign address, punctuated with challenges to Warner to tell of his participation in any. Harold P. Hathaway of Taunton, who served at the platform as Fuller was having, said Warner. "He tried to shake hands with me but I refused.

He denied that he had ever had anything to do with Attorney Hathaway appearing before the Committee on Education in behalf of Fall River mill owners.

The defence rested its case late today. Neither side called Hathaway as a witness.

Following a conference with Judge Sisk, H. Brown and attorneys, it was announced that closing arguments would be heard tomorrow.

Lieutenant Governor Fuller was recalled to the stand today by Attorney John W. Cummings and asked concerning his use of United States Government stationery.

Said the witness: "Any government stationery I ever used I paid for out of my own pocket."

Concerning the famous Salem meeting it was testified that the Lieutenant-Governor said: "One man in the Legislature got five times his salary."

Asked to name him, he had refused.

Witnesses testifying concerning that meeting and a set of written questions Fuller had used in asking Warner to tell of his law partnership with Hathaway, were Charles H. Magee, a Lynn reporter, and George F. Bates. The list of questions, Bates testified, were given him by Magee, who got them from Fuller.

These letters were admitted as evidence over the objections of Warner's attorneys. John L. Hill. The former Speaker of the House identified them as correspondence with the Industrial Accident Board in connection with a "Pie Silk" case.

Two of the letters, signed "Joseph E. Warner," requested that $450 paid administrators, $50 for counsel fees and $15 costs. The third letter was from the board and was addressed to "Hathaway, Warner & Dunn." Warner denied he had received a fee in connection with the case.

HYLAN OFFERED $50,000 A YEAR NOT TO RUN

New York, March 21.—Mayor Hylan sprung a big sensation at a legislative hearing at City Hall today when he revealed it had been intimated to him before his re-election that, if he would not run, he could join a law firm at a salary of $50,000 a year. The mayor did not disclose the name of the firm.

Mass Meeting Demands Action by Congress

The following communication to Congress urging action on the soldiers' bonus was adopted at the mass meeting on the Common today.

"Five thousand people, American citizens all, including war service men and women, fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers and wives of those who answered their country's call, business men and clerks, professional men and laborers, employers and employes, representatives of all lines of activities, assembled today, March 21, 1922, on the hallowed ground of Boston Common demand that Congress take immediate action on the Adjusted Compensation Bill.

"On this sacred spot, where American liberty was nurtured, where American youth defied British tyranny and maintained their rights against arrogant British soldiers, where hovers the spirit of the martyred Crispus Attucks, the holy land of free speech, these thousands remind Congress that it is still the servant of the American people and that the people have spoken for economic justice for their soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses.

"Congress, there has been too much delay and too much vacillating on this compensation or bonus question and altogether too much truckling to the interests of the war profiteers. It did not break the country to pay billions to contractors for work never done.

"It will not break the country to carry out the provisions of the compensation bill, but there is grave danger of bad breaks in other directions if Congress continues to make the demand of veterans for economic justice a football of politics.

"All that Boston Common stands for demands that Congress shift at once from expediency to patriotism and pass the Adjusted Compensation Bill."

THRONG CHEERS DEMAND FOR BONUS

would be unlikely he will be in his present office a year from now."

A perfect storm of applause greeted the judge when he pointed out that when the nation appropriated billions of dollars to reimburse the contractors and manufacturers for cancellation of their contracts at the close of the war not a voice was raised in protest, but that now, when it is suggested that adequate compensation be paid to the fighting men who did the hard work, profiteers, munitions, bankers and some newspapers raised their hands in horror at the thought.

Judge Murray declared he is most heartily in favor of a sales tax to meet the cost of the bonus and declared that immediate steps should be taken by Congress to pass a measure embodying such.

The speakers included John L. McDonald, commander Massachusetts Department Veterans of Foreign Wars; Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester.

It will be remembered that "Dave" Buckley, who was cited for bravery and distinguished service, was a close friend of Eddie Rickenbacker, the great American ace. He knows the needs of veterans. Colonel Herbert was assistant chief of staff New England for the Legion at the Veterans Bureau.

His able assistance in this capacity gave him endless arguments in favor of immediate action on the Soldiers' Bonus Bill, which he has helped compose.

Dave Herbert had a spectacular career during the World War, and is one of the best orators among the legion workers of this State. He was personally assigned to speak for Governor Channing H. Cole, state commander.

Mayor McDuffee of Lynn is one of the many powerful men in high public office when he came back from France. His sensational campaign for Mayor proved him a good fighter in politics as well as war. He participated in resolutions for today's meeting.

A wonderful program of good music was arranged for the big rally, including a first class instrumental concert by Everett City Band, an orchestration of twenty-five musicians conducted by William Fish.

The musical selections included Rebecca McAlister, a widely known Boston concert singer; Miss Alice Killeen of Dorchester, Quarter Kelso H. Sutton, the wonderful boy soprano of St. Paul's Cathedral, whose voice has thrilled thousands in that edifice and the Sunbeam Trio, composed of Dennis Geary, Dan Dowdell, Gilbert Marles of South Boston and Frank Kilbram of Cambridge.

Miss Killeen and her accompanist, Miss Helen Roche, talented organist of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, are members of the Bonnie Trio, and are well known in the Boston concert field.

Then though the stairs and halls were filled with flame and smoke, he managed to stagger down to the street with his burden. His face and hands were badly burned and his uniform ruined.

Some one told him two children were burning to death in the apartment of Mr and Mrs. Costas Dosalis on the top floor, and once more braving the flames Sullivan mounted the stairs. He found the children terrified, under a bed, wrapped them in blankets and bore them to safety. Then he collapsed. He was treated by a physician, revived and went back to duty.

The fire swept through the four family house, destroying it, and driving 20 people into the street in their night clothing.

More than $15,000 damage was done. The fire marshal's office and the police made an investigation.

BONUS TO COME BEFORE HOUSE THURSDAY

Speaker Reported Ready to Entertain Motion for Suspending Rules

By Associated Press

Washington, March 21.—The soldiers' bonus bill will be taken up in the House Thursday under suspension of the rules, under a plan agreed on today at a conference between Speaker Gillett and Chairman Campbell of the Rules Committee.

The conference was said to be ready to entertain a motion to suspend the rules Mr. Campbell said he would call a meeting of his committee tomorrow at which he will ask committee members to report a rule designating Thursday as suspension day with a proviso that three hours debate on the bill shall be provided.

State Senate Bonus Resolve Delayed

Despite the plea made for immediate action on the bonus bill by Brigadier General Charles H. Cole, other officers of the American Legion and many thousands of Massachusetts citizens, the bonus resolution was held up in the State Senate on motion of Senator Silas D. Hood of Taunton.

The formal requisition in the State Legislature calls upon Congress for immediate passage of adjusted compensation legislation for the soldiers of America who served their country in the World War.

The resolution had been reported favorably by unanimous vote of the legislative committee on military affairs. It had been adopted, without delay, by unanimous vote of the House of Representatives.

Both these bodies had felt the justice of General Cole's plea that the Legislature hasten to inform the Massachusetts delegation at Washington that the elected Representatives of the people in this State want the soldiers' bonus bill passed.

When the resolution was reached for action in the Senate, Senator Hood of Taunton moved that action be postponed until Thursday. His motion was adopted without debate, the Democratic members of the Senate sitting in their seats without making one effort to spur the Republican majority to action.

Hood made no speech at that time but he later made statements to newspapermen. In one statement Senator Hood was opposed to the bonus "because of the unsettled financial condition of the country."

PUBLIC CONTROL ACT.

On the first day of July, 1918, the Public Control Act (Chapter 784, Acts 1918) went into effect, providing for what was practically a lease of the Boston Elevated Railway for a term of ten years to the State of Massachusetts, the control over the management and operation of the railway being vested in a board of five trustees appointed by the Governor.

The ten-cent fare now in force over a greater part of the Boston Elevated Railway system was introduced in July, 1919. In a very few months this fare began to produce revenue sufficient to meet expenses and eventually to absorb the earlier deficits, so that on June 30, 1920, the trustees reported that operating receipts for the year had met operating costs, including all fixed charges and a reserve to depreciation.

In the meantime, tracks had been repaired, hundreds of new cars had been purchased, an advance in wages had been granted to the 10,000 employes, and increases in the price of coal and other commodities had been met.

MEANT HARDSHIPS

In a word, at the end of a year when the peak of high prices in operating expenses had been passed, when much of the rolling stock had been renewed, and with surface tracks repaired, the trustees were still able to report that operating expense for the year had absorbed earlier deficits and met operating costs, including all fixed charges and a reserve to depreciation.

This reserve to depreciation according to a statement of the chairman of the board of trustees, amounts to $2,000,000 annually set aside from fares to provide for renewals and replacements.

While the emergency existed and while the spirit of sacrifice engendered by the war pervaded the entire country, this ten-cent fare was not aimed without a murmur. It meant the giving up of Sunday outings to many families, it meant the giving up of higher education for many young men and young women; it meant the giving up of occasional trips to the beach for tired mothers and young children, but it was all accepted as a part of the aftermath of war, and not to be compared to the actual desolation which prevailed in so many homes.

But that period of heroic self-denial has happily passed. On June 30, 1920, we had over 500 miles of track in good condition, newer plant, repair shops, car barns and rolling stock rehabilitated, all fixed charges and operating expenses met out of operating receipts, and $2,000,000 reserve to depreciation.

BURDEN ON PEOPLE.

Naturally a reduction in fares was looked for to follow, but after a lapse of over a year and a half, the high rate of fare adopted to meet an emergency still prevails.

After reviewing the entire situation, the Massachusetts Public Service Commission in January, 1919, said:

"Viewing the matter in the most favorable light, there is a chance that higher fares will, in time, cure the financial ills of our street railway companies, but the chance does not seem great, and there is no immediate prospect of such a cure. In the meantime the increased rates are injuring the community in ways that are evident."

In the same report the Public Service Commission states:

"No one can truthfully say that the raising of rates has now had a fair trial in Massachusetts. The six cent fare originated here in 1905 and of late all manner of rates have been introduced. The result has not been what was hoped. With all their raising of fares our companies seem little nearer financial salvation."

NECESSARY TO EXPANSION.

The recent decision of the Attorney-General, to the effect that certain bills introduced into the Legislature looking to a resumption of the five-cent fare on the Boston Elevated Railway system, were unconstitutional, was no doubt founded upon legal facts, but this does not imply that other means may not be found, entirely within the law, to bring about the restoration of a five-cent fare which is absolutely necessary to the future development of Boston.

It is an admitted fact that higher fares have resulted in a loss of from 10 to 15 per cent. in the number of passengers carried.

The restoration of the five-cent fare means that retail business will expand, that larger industries will seek locations here for branch factories and establishments; that large assembling concerns and lumber companies will be led to take up the idle tracts of land along our waterfronts, and that the entire commercial and industrial development of Boston will be fostered and encouraged.

Adequate street car facilities and reasonable fares are essential to the growth of any city. The subject is not debatable. Boston must have a five-cent fare.

67 AUTOS BURN IN MEDFORD GARAGE

50 Persons Driven to Street by Blaze That Causes $100,000 Loss

More than fifty persons were driven into the street and six horses were saved when a fire in the West Medford garage, on Harvard avenue, today destroyed sixty-seven automobiles and ruined the building, causing total damage estimated at $100,000.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Connors. He noticed flames burning in the first section of the garage near the Harvard avenue entrance. Frank Carrell, manager of the garage for Kenney Brothers, the owners, was on duty at the time, and while Patrolman Connors sent in the alarm, the officer who discovered the fire and Manager Carrell manned the fire extinguishers and fought the flames until the apparatus reached the scene.

GASOLINE EXPLODES

On the arrival of the first apparatus another alarm was sounded. The flames gained considerable headway, having worked into the second section before the extra apparatus arrived.

Several small explosions, caused by gasoline in the machines, kept the firemen fighting the blaze out of the interior of the building. When the fire had been burning about half an hour a portion of the roof in the first section fell through. A number of men from the West Medford fire station were endangered by the flying debris and several nearly escaped being hit by a steel cross bar.

SIX HORSES RESCUED.

Six horses in a wooden stable in the rear of the garage, owned by Ober, proprietor of the West Medford grocery store, were rescued by persons who answered the second alarm.

Sparks were driven by the wind on to the roof of nearby buildings and threatened to burn several structures in the vicinity of the garage. A number of people who were driven from their homes, helped the firemen. Neighbors in the Boston avenue section opened their homes to the refugees.

FIREMAN MISSED.

The garage is located in the exclusive section of the West Medford district, and according to fire officials, the loss of machines will greatly exceed the damage to the building. Several new cars, recently purchased, were stored in the rear of the building. They had not been used since delivery and were destroyed.

The fire threatened to reach the rear wall of St. Raphael's Church which is located on High street and a crew was stationed by fire officials to protect the edifice and another building in the same lot. The smoke discolored the rear wall of the church.

Hoseman Phillip Canney of the Central station was partly overcome by smoke during the blaze.

RADIOPHONE CHALLENGE FOR HARVARD DEBATERS

College debating teams, separated by many hundred of miles of space, will in the near future hold regular debates by means of the radiophone, according to plans adopted by authorities at Harvard.

From Ashland College, away out in Ohio, came a challenge to Harvard for a radiophone debate. Harvard authorities replied that they could not accept the challenge this year, but that next year they will meet any and all comers in that manner.

The plan will be generally taken up by Eastern colleges and their Western opponents, it is expected.

MUST REFUND MILLIONS IN INCOME TAXES

Washington, March 21.—Millions of dollars in income taxes must be returned, according to an interpretation by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair of the Supreme Court decision in the case of Smietanka, collector, against the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, officials said today. The Supreme Court held that income held and accumulated by a trustee for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons was not taxable.

SPANIARDS AND MOORS IN ARTILLERY DUEL

Madrid, March 21.—Further shelling of Alhucemas by the Moors is reported in an official statement on the Moroccan operations today. The Moorish guns were ultimately silenced by the Alhucemas batteries. There is an abundance of ammunition in the town and sufficient provisions to enable it to face any attack, with the assistance of the squadron in the bay, the statement declares.

SISTERS OF CHARITY ENDORSE FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

At the Children's Home in Newburyport, Mass., there are an average of sixty children under the loving care of the Sisters of Charity.

In a recent signed statement the Sisters in charge say: "We cheerfully endorse Father John's Medicine because to our House it has become indispensable. We use it, not only for coughs and colds, but also as a builder. We tell our friends that we would not be without it. We have used it with great success and find it to have no equal as a builder. (Signed) The Home for Destitute Children, Sisters of Charity, Newburyport, Mass."

In a great many institutions of a similar character throughout the country Father John's Medicine is what the nurses in charge depend upon to keep the children well and strong. They know that it is entirely safe because it is free from alcohol and dangerous drugs.

READING GIRLS DRAGGED 15 FEET BY AUTO

Miss Sewall, One of Victims, Is Well Known as Sculptor

While side-stepping a puddle, Miss Flora C. Ramsay, thirty years old, and Miss Emiline Sewell, nineteen years old, were struck by an automobile owned and operated by E. J. Callahan, of Medford, on South Main street, Reading. The girls were dragged about fifteen feet before the machine was stopped.

Miss Ramsay had fifteen stitches taken in her face and Miss Sewell ten. Miss Sewell is well-known in Reading circles as a sculptor. She designed the Reading war memorial and several others throughout New England.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard D. Sewell, No. 73 South Main street. Miss Ramsay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Ramsay, of No. 75 South Main street, Reading.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become large you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you are surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.

This Leaves the Arms Free from Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.—Advertisement.

SQUARE DEAL IN FREIGHT RATES DEMANDED

100 New Englanders, Headed by Governor Cox, Gather in Washington

Washington, March 21.—One hundred New England men, headed by Governor Cox of Massachusetts, and representing the Legislatures, industries and business of the six States were in Washington today to demand a square deal and an opportunity for equal competition in business with other sections of the country.

Out of the meeting it was expected would come the creation of a New England bureau here, an organization for furthering the interests of commerce and industry of that section of the country.

The bureau project will be launched at a banquet of the New Englanders tonight at the New Willard Hotel. That it will be organized is a foregone conclusion. Attending the banquet will be Senators Lodge and Walsh and practically every Congressman from New England.

The unfairness of the differential freight rates, whereby New England ports, and especially Boston, is being discriminated against in favor of Baltimore and other Southern ports, is to be the principal topic of the conference.

NOT SEEKING FAVORS.

Edward E. Blodgett, chairman of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, explained the New England fight for equal rates.

"The differentials in favor of competing ports," he said, "can be removed only through such court action as has already been taken.

"The playing of politics will not give us the equality we are looking for. The case must be tried on its merits.

"New England wants to be given equality with other sections. Nothing more. We do not want protection. All we ask for is an opportunity for fair and equal competition."

The proposed taking over of the Cape Cod Canal by the Federal government is another matter of interest to all New England, to be debated at tonight's meeting. The New Englanders are urging the passing of the bill, now before Congress, whereby the government would buy the canal and deepen the channel and thus allow the passing of the largest ocean steamers.

The conferees will urge free tolls for all shipping as a benefit for New England and Eastern trade. The ship subsidy bill and the proposed St. Lawrence canal, so far as these measures affect the six states, will also be discussed.

Whether New England will give its support to the proposal of private interests to harness the St. Lawrence rapids for power purposes will also receive the attention of the delegates.

SPEAKERS AT CONFERENCE.

The formal speakers at the conference will be:

Governor Cox of Massachusetts; First Assistant Postmaster John H. Bartlett, representing New Hampshire; Henry F. Merrill, chairman of the Maine Port Commission; Edmund Wood, president of the New Bedford Chamber of Commerce; E. C. Southwick, representing the Rhode Island Commission on Foreign and Domestic Commerce and Waldo E. Clark, Connecticut State Port Commissioner.

The New Englanders gathered for the conference are: Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and David I. Walsh of Massachusetts; Senators Bert M. Fernald and Frederick Hale of Maine, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire; Congressmen Allen T. Treadway, Frederick H. Gillett, Calvin D. Paige, Samuel E. Winslow, John J. Rogers, Robert S. Maloney, Frederick W. Dallinger, Chas. L. LATEST NEWS GIVEN 35,000 RADIO FANS

Boston American's Broadcasting of Last-Minute Event; Proves Success

By A. B. HOAG.

About 35,000 persons sat comfortably in their homes Monday night and listened to the late afternoon and evening news come rolling through the ether from the Amrad broadcasting station in Medford.

It marked the beginning of a new era in wireless telephony in New England. Hereafter the very latest news items will be available to every one within a thousand miles of Medford.

The results of national elections or world series games or other big news will be known in the furthest Maine town as soon as it is known in the newspaper offices.

FLOOD OF QUERIES.

The announcement of the proposal to broadcast news collected by the Boston American in addition to the usual program of broadcasting brought a flood of letters from men and women all over New England who wanted to know what they must do in order to hear the news.

Questions of where to buy instruments, how to install them and what broadcasting stations would be available were in the majority.

For that reason it seems advisable to describe in simple, non-technical language how the layman should go about it to install a receiving radio phone.

Today I will take up the subject from a general point of view, and later on dwell with more detail on the different parts and their work by.

EASY TO OBTAIN.

There are plenty of places where instruments may be purchased. Most reputable electrical goods dealers carry a good line of radio apparatus, and there are several dealers who carry nothing but such apparatus. They will also explain the operation of their radio instruments.

Receiving radiophones, like auto mobiles, vary in price. Their cost depends mainly on their range; that is, on the distance from the sending station at which they will function properly. A small instrument called the crystal detector, with a range of fifteen to twenty-five miles, costs between $25 and $50.

A set having a range of one or 200 miles and requiring a storage battery would probably cost less than $100 for all the parts and its installation. This is the set that would be required by anyone living much more than twenty-five miles from Boston.

SIMPLE CONNECTIONS.

After the set is purchased, it will be necessary to make a few connections in installing it. This is so simple, however, that anyone able to operate an ice-cream freezer or run a sewing machine should have no difficulty.

One connection will have to be made to an aerial. I will describe another day the best aerial system which may be constructed cheaply and simply. Suffice it here to say that a single wire, sixty feet long, stretched from house to garage makes an excellent aerial.

Another connection will be the ground. An ordinary water pipe either hot or cold, will serve for this. Even a steam pipe, especially if it is carrying live steam, will make a ground.

If you have invested in a set requiring a storage battery, you may have to make certain connections here, but your dealer will describe them so that you will have no difficulty in making them.

NO LICENSE REQUIRED.

There is no license required to operate a receiving radiophone. As soon as you begin to send, however, that is another block. None of a different range, though, you will need a license and a thorough knowledge of the rules of the ethereal roads.

If either of these rules is not properly, there is no danger whatever attached to the operations of a radio phone receiving set. In fact, by aerial will serve to a certain extent as a lightning rod. There is, however, one caution to be observed. Never listen in during a thunder storm.

READY FOR ACTION.

If you have made all connections according to directions, all that you have to do is to put the ear pieces over your ears, assume a long, easy nonchalance, and twist the knob on your instrument.

All broadcasting in this part of the country is done at 360-meter wave length. This means that if you wish to listen in on the broadcasting, you will have to "tune" your instrument for a 360 meter wave length.

Having done this, you will in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, be able to listen in on news, music and lectures. In the hundredth case you should state explicitly to your

A COAT dress is an extraordinarily supple thing as made by by breadth of fine blue serge, embroidered and tassled in gold. The embroidery is in the form of bands that trim the bodice and the sleeves and outline the long, slender tunic. The bodice has a bias way of opening at the front and the tight sleeves are finished with cuffs both wide and deep. The easily fitting dress provide a hundred and one occasions for which a costume of this sort will be suitable.

CREPE DE CHINE and chiffon are charmingly combined in a frock for the tea hour. The figured black and white crepe de chine used for the bodice continues in panels at the sides of the skirt, giving a suggestion of bouffancy over the tucked chiffon. The side sections of the bodice and the wide sleeves are of the black chiffon, and are pleated apron effect hanging a little longer than the panels. A girdle of bring of jade beads about the waist introduces the bright necessary touch of color in this dress.

Question Box for Radio Fans

Address all communications to Radio Editor, Boston American, No. 81 Summer street, Boston, Mass. No questions will be answered by mail or telephone.

Q.—I am told that if I buy an ordinary radiophone receiver I will be able to hear the dots and dashes of the ordinary wireless stations, as well as the actual words and music of the radiophone. Is this so?—L. B., Springfield, Mass.

A.—Yes. If you learn the code you will be able to pick up the messages of other radio stations up to the limit of your instruments. With a good set you should be able to hear the government stations, and if you are near the coast the wireless stations on ships at sea.

Q.—Must the wire from the antennate to receiver be a single or stranded copper wire?—K. C. L., Quincy, Mass.

A.—You may use either for receiving.

Q.—Would like your advice regarding where a radio telephone can be procured. Is the small size of which I have account, such as I have been used in pictorial reviews, called the pocket size?—S. M. H., Rockport, Mass.

A.—Any reputable electrical supply dealer will get you a radiophone set. The small size, such as are carried in the pocket, etc., are still in the experimental stage, and I would not advise you to trouble with it, unless you wish to experiment.

CALLS SCHOOLS IN SOMERVILLE TINDER BOXES

Fire Hazards of Four Buildings Protested at Hearing Before Aldermen

"Tinder boxes is a better name than fire traps for the Forster, Edgerly, Highland and Luther V. Bell grammar schools in this city and they should all be razed because they are not fit for any pupil to occupy," said former Alderman James W. Kenney of Somerville, representing the West Somerville Civic Association and the Western Avenue High Parent Teachers' Association, at a hearing of the Somerville Board of Aldermen on the order for additional school accommodations.

"There has been some talk here," he added, "of empty rooms in the Highland School. I would offer a prayer to the Deity if every room in the building was empty. I know of families who have moved out of the city rather than take the risk of sending their children to school in these fire traps."

Vice-Chairman Walter I. Chapman of the School Board then stated that the Forster school was a fire trap and that the building should be torn down as it was built soon after the Civil War. There is a cooking class in the attic of the Forster school, he added, and the fire department would have great trouble in getting children out safely if a fire ever occurred in the building.

"If I lived in the district I would go to the State fire marshal's office and report conditions. The School Board is not responsible for this condition of affairs, and if it was I would not rest twenty-four hours before I had taken remedies to fix the matter or resign from the committee. I would not have on my shoulders the responsibility for this fire hazard."

Mrs. Alice E. Towle thought the authorities ought first to fix up the conditions in the Forster school and safeguard the lives of the children before building new schoolhouses. Frank Thompson thought the fire hazard in the Forster school should first be lowered before spending money on new buildings.

MORRISSEY TO NAME HIS SHIP HENRY FORD

New Schooner Will Compete in Elimination Contests in Fall for Cup Race

Captain Clayton Morrissey, well known fishing skipper announced today that he had decided to christen his new fishing schooner, which is to be launched from the yards at Essex in April, the Henry Ford. The schooner will be a contender for the honor of representing America in the international race next Fall.

The skipper also admitted that she is going to be launched with all the old-time formalities, including a toss of real old champagne. He confessed that this, in these parlous prohibition days, seemed something of a waste, but said the schooner deserves the best she can get.

Expert who has seen the fine lines of the Henry Ford insist she is the "sweetest craft that ever sailed out of Gloucester bound for the banks.

She is 107 feet long on the water line, or five feet short of the limit set for racing fishermen by the deed of gift for the International Fishermen's Cup.

Her designer, the veteran Tom McManus, called the Henry Ford his masterpiece. It was announced that so soon as she is ready she will be engaged in a series of races with the schooner Puritan, designed by Starling Burgess and launched last week, and the Mayflower, another Burgess creation.

The winner of these races will probably be selected to challenge the Bluenose or whatever schooner the Canadian fishermen may select to defend the cup they captured last Fall.

COMMISSIONER 'NECESSARY TO GUARD PUBLIC'

Nay, Counsel for Cosmopolitan Trust, Defends Law Creating Allen's Office

"The statute creating the office of bank commissioner was necessary to protect the public and when a bank fails there is generally something rotten somewhere," declared Attorney Frank N. Nay, today in Supreme Court.

The full bench heard arguments on the bill of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company against Max Mitchell and the other directors of the bank, holding them personally responsible for losses sustained by the bank, in excess of $3,000,000. Nay appeared for the trust company.

"I cannot conceive that this court will let these men go, and say to them 'You may disregard the statutes in regard to loans and investments, you may be negligent; you may lend large sums of money to men without credit, and you need not look them up; you may lose your bank millions of dollars, and let the loss be distributed through the community.'"

Attorney Nay, representing the trust company, cited instance of the New England Lumber Company, which he said was given credit by the Cosmopolitan for $765,000, on which the bank would lose not less than $650,000.

He said it was the first time the office of the bank commissioner had been attacked, and that to hold it unconstitutional now would throw into confusion not only the affairs of this bank, but of others.

Justice De Courcy asked what would be the effect of the right of review if a bank had been closed. Attorney Nay replied that if the bank were shaky it would kill it, but that so would the filing of a bill in court by the bank commissioner, and the appointment of a receiver.

Justice De Courcy asked: "Would not the practical difference be that the court would not appoint a receiver unless assured there was cause?" Attorney Nay: "But the bank commissioner wouldn't act unless assured there was cause."

Justice De Courcy: "What protection would there be if the bank commissioner was not that sort of a man?" Attorney Nay: "When a bank fails there is generally some dishonesty calling for immediate action. That was the reason for passing the statute under which Bank Commissioner Allen was appointed.

MEDBURY

Says Show Your Guests Your Linen and They'll Tell You Where You've Stopped

The first thing a bride does after she gets married is to embroider her table linen. This is a foolish thing to do until you find out if you like your husband as well as you do the linen.

Some women change their husbands as often as they do their table cloths.

It's best to leave the initials off the linen, and then you can marry a man no matter what letter his name begins with.

You can get a husband in ten minutes, but it takes a long time to embroider a tablecloth.

Of course, this doesn't affect a lot of couples. They're separated before the wife even gets the linen stamped.

One girl embroidered all her linen while she was engaged. Her sweetheart broke the engagement, and then she had to hunt around for another guy whose initial was "G."

She had to go out with every guy in the alphabet before she could get the guy with the right initial to propose.

He thought she was marrying him for love, but was only taking him for his monogram.

She wasn't going to let love stand between her and two dozen doilies.

When that husband divorced her, she furnished paper napkins with her next husband's meals.

She used oil cloth on the dining room table and wrote the initials on it with a pencil.

She must expect to have a lot of husbands because she bought two pencils and three erasers.

The up-to-date wife may have a husband by the name of Smith, but she has "Pullman" embroidered on her towels.

One guy stayed at a house party over the week-end and he kept calling the host "Mr. Ritz-Carlton."

The guy who had the room next to him thought the host's name was "Waldorf-Astoria."

Show your guests your linen and they'll tell you where you've stopped.

Some people don't stop at anything. One guy who weighed three hundred pounds had "Barnum and Bailey" written on the back of his night gown.

VETERANS ASK FOR PROBE OF BUREAU

20 Wounded Men Among Those Backing State House Bill for Inquiry by Congress

More than a hundred ex-service men, a score of whom bore wounds received in the service, appeared at a hearing today before the legislative Committee on Military Affairs on the bill of Representative John Thomas of Gloucester, calling for a congressional investigation of the Veterans' Bureau.

Thomas read a long list of veterans from Gloucester whose claims for compensation had been denied or delayed.

He told the committee Dr. Arthur E. Bridges, director of the New England bureau, had accused him in the corridor before the meeting of being at the hearing for political purposes. He called this a "cockeyed lie."

Henry B. Nicholls, a veteran who had been wounded fourteen times, bared his chest as he recited the delays which have prevented him from obtaining assistance. He was unable to continue.

Major James T. Duane, former State Commander of the American Legion, demanded the number of cases of war veterans in this district who had failed to secure justice from the government.

"I am not here to answer questions Mr. Duane may put to me," replied Mr. Bridges.

"The action of some of the members of the board are disgraceful," declared Duane. "In one instance a man applied for compensation and was told that he was not handicapped, even though his left arm was cut off."

Alderman Gilbert O'Neill of Gloucester, himself a wounded veteran, signaled in behalf of the ex-service men. He cited the case of Roland Dorsey, a veteran suffering from shellshock and sleeping sickness. The boy's uncle gave his story, and stated that the boy, while at Parker Hill, was forced to sweep floors and make beds.

2-ALARM FIRE CAUSES $20,000 LOSS IN LYNN

Two alarms were sounded for a fire which damaged the four-story wooden business block, Nos. 259-267 Union street, Lynn, today. The blaze was discovered by Patrolman Thomas Ryan. When firemen arrived the flames, starting on the ground floor, had worked through the roof. The Harriman Drug Company, and J. F. Parsons, jeweler, occupied the ground floor. The three upper floors were vacant. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

ORDER FOR COAL STRIKE READY FOR ISSUANCE

White House Statement Says Government Seeks to Avert Walkout

New York, March 21—The order for a suspension of work in the anthracite and bituminous mines throughout the country on April 1 will be issued late today, according to Philip Murray, International Vice-President of the United Mine Workers of America. The order will affect about 600,000 miners.

Washington, March 21—The government, it was stated at the White House today, has not entirely abandoned attempts to bring bituminous operators and miners together in a conference to avert a strike on April 1.

Final Effort Made to Avert Big Coal Strike

New York, March 21. (By International News Service)—A supreme final effort to avert a strike in the anthracite coal fields is under way. A meeting of operators and miners was called at the Union League Club, it was generally understood, a general strike would be called immediately throughout the hard coal fields, if the negotiations failed.

It was understood President Lewis was preparing a statement calling out all the hard coal miners in the 4,000 local districts throughout the country.

Those attending the meeting late today were:

For the miners—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America; Thomas Kennedy, P. J. Golden and W. J. Brennan, members of the sub-committee of the scale committee.

For the operators—S. D. Warriner, W. J. Richards and W. L. Connell.

LLOYD GEORGE TO ASK VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

London, March 21 (By the Associated Press)—Prime Minister Lloyd George will resume his place in the House of Commons April 3 and will immediately ask for a vote on the government's policy regarding the Genoa Economic Conference, Austen Chamberlain, the government leader, announced in the House today. Mr. Chamberlain added that the government intended to put a motion clearly raising the question as to whether it possessed the confidence of the House.

LORD READING BATTLES WITH TIGER IN INDIA

London, March 21—Lord Reading, British Viceroy to India and former British Envoy in the United States, narrowly escaped death during an Indian tiger hunt, said a Jaipur dispatch to the Daily Express today. Natives had set fire to the jungle brush to chase the game into the open. A tigress, frightened and maddened by the flames, made a dash for the Viceroy. He remained cool and fired upon the animal, wounding her. She was killed by the natives.

Let kiddies romp outdoors

Nothing like fresh air play to build sound, sturdy bodies

Too much coddling — over-heated rooms — too heavy flannels—and lack of outdoor exercise make weaklings in later life; Let the youngsters run outside—in winter as well as summer.

WISE MOTHERS know that daily outdoor exercise in childhood, is the only foundation for strong bodies in later life.

Daily means winter as well as summer.

But, with outdoor exposure, some colds are bound to come.

Must not neglect colds

And we know now that colds are not just "simple" colds.

They must not be neglected.

Much of the catarrh, deafness and ill health of adults is now laid by physicians to the neglected colds of childhood.

Constant dosing harmful

On the other hand, constant internal dosing frequently disturbs the child's digestion.

When the stomach is upset and appetite impaired, the child neither eats nor digests enough food to keep up its strength.

This, in turn, lowers its bodily resistance—invites further colds and other diseases, too.

A druggist solves the problem

This problem has been solved by a North Carolina druggist.

His discovery, Vicks VapoRub, acts like a vapor lamp and also like a liniment or plaster.

It comes in the form of a salve to be applied externally—doesn't disturb digestion—can be used as often and as freely as desired, with perfect safety.

Vapors set free by body heat

This druggist found a new way to combine the old time-tested remedies, for colds — Camphor, Menthol, Turpentine and other valued ingredients.

This salve is so made that when applied over throat and chest these ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

Inhaled with each breath, these vapors carry the medication directly to the parts affected—that is, the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time, Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin like a liniment, poultice or plaster.

Grandma's method brought up to date

The value of external applications for colds, particularly those of children, has long been recognized.

In the days when grandma was the family doctor, goose grease mixed with camphor and turpentine was the favorite remedy.

Then came camphorated oil and vapor lamps. Vicks goes a long step further.

Colds should be treated directly

Colds are simply inflammations of the mucous membrane that lines the air passages and lungs and should be treated in the way that surface inflammations, such as boils or burns.

The medication should be applied directly to the inflamed parts.

But the air passages can only be reached with vapors that can be inhaled. And until the discovery of Vicks there was no convenient or economical method of supplying these vapors.

A household reliance

This treatment is a boon to mothers.

Used immediately after exposure it helps to prevent children's colds.

Applied at bedtime it is a safeguard against spasmodic croup.

It works quickly in sore throat, head colds and chest colds.

Good for grown-ups, too

Vicks is just as good for grown-ups, too—for tonsilitis, quinsy, deep chest colds, catarrh, bronchitis and asthma.

Its penetrative and rubefacient action makes it useful every day, also, for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, boils, itching skin troubles, chapped skin, chilblains and sprains.

For any troubles, in fact, where there is inflammation or congestion.

How Vicks should be used

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds—Rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bed time usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest as necessary, first using hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin—then rubbed in well until the skin is red, spread on thickly and covered with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, swallow small pieces the size of a pea.

Vapors important

When Vicks is applied over the throat and chest, the bed-covering and clothing should always be left loose around the neck in the form of a tunnel. As the body heat releases the ingredients, vapors arise from the chest application. To get the fullest effect from Vicks these vapors should be freely inhaled.

THE MOTHER'S PROBLEM

Growing children need outdoor exercise.
With outdoor exposure comes colds.
Serious results often follow neglected colds.
But too constant dosing for colds is also harmful.
To those mothers who haven't satisfactorily solved this problem, this message is directed.

SEIZE 650 CASES OF MEDICINE IN RAID

"Robustine" Suitable for Beverage Purposes, Director Roberts Charges

Federal agents descended on No. 374 Massachusetts avenue today and seized 650 cases of "Robustine," a patent medicine, which Prohibition Enforcement Director Roberts claims was not made according to the proper formula, but was suitable for beverage purposes.

Agents of the prohibition force recently bought several bottles at $2 each, and sent them to Washington for analysis. Upon receiving the report of the analysis from Washington, Director Roberts ordered the raiding squad to seize the "medicine."

While agents were loading the "Robustine" on trucks, Attorney Daniel A. Shea, representing Cornelius Keefe, proprietor of the store at No. 374 Massachusetts avenue, went to the Federal Court and applied for an injunction to restrain the Federal agents from seizing the goods.

The seized "medicine" together with some cherry juice was taken to a storehouse.

"Under the Federal statutes we have the right to seize and hold such Robustine until the beverage tax has been paid on it," said Director Roberts after the raid.

"The permit was issued to the Robustine and Bolmer company. Robustine is a patent medicine, but that offered for sale at above place was not made according to the recognized formula, although it was suitable for beverage purposes."

ROXBURY MAN IS ROBBED BY ARMED BANDITS

While standing at the corner of Quincy and Dyer streets Roxbury, Charles Weirs, of No. 41 Westwood street, was held up by two armed men, who jumped from an automobile and robbed him of $40, according to the story he told the police of the Dudley street station. While his pair were relieving Weir of his money, a third man sat at the wheel of the machine, the engine of which was running.

The only description of the men the police were able to obtain was that they wore dark overcoats and soft hats.

WATERTOWN OFFICIALS NAMED BY SELECTMEN

At the first meeting of the Watertown Selectmen, Forrest J. Maynard, former town engineer, was appointed superintendent of streets, consolidating both offices and necessitating the removal of Peter H. Condon, who has held the office for the past seventeen years. Thomas F. Valley will take the office of clerk of the department, formerly filled by Town Clerk William P. McIntire in conjunction with his other duties. The storekeeper's department has also been split, John C. Ford having been appointed to serve in superintendent of the meth department.

BROCKTON SHOE UNION SEEKS NEW HEARING

Brockton, March 21.—A decision to ask a reopening of the hearing at which they were given a 10 per cent. wage cut was reached by Dressers and Packers Union of the Brockton Shoemakers' Union at a meeting here today. General Secretary-Treasurer Charles L. Bliss attended the meeting. The operatives intend to restore the 10 per cent cut and demand a 20 per cent. increase over the wages they were getting before the reduction went into effect.

KING GEORGE ILL WITH SLIGHT ATTACK OF "FLU"

London, March 21 (By International News Service).—King George is slightly ill. It was stated today there was no danger. All of the royal engagements were cancelled for the day. The King is suffering from a mild attack of influenza.

COUNTY JAILS ATTACKED AT HEARING

Battle for State Control Resumed; Filthy Conditions Alleged

Filthy bed clothes, foul food and jails and in accordant with a high degree of infectious social disease, existed in the jails and houses of correction of the counties attacked by Senator Bruce E. Brown of Worcester, in his demand for State control of the county penal institutions.

The annual battle between the county forces and the adherents of supervision by a department of State control was begun before 500 legislators in the State House and Harvard.

Conditions in the Barnstable House of Correction were filthy and dirty, declared Senator Bliss. "In one cell there was mold for anyone to be confined there. There were no sheets on the beds and we were told that the blankets were washed only once in six months."

The bedding in the Hampden County House of Correction was filthy. We found prisoners suffering from infectious diseases in charge of the sick. In order to justify this condition the Sheriff sent us testimony from three doctors stating that it was not dangerous to the health of such inmates to have their meals administered by other inmates suffering from such highly infectious diseases.

"In some of the county jails we found a laxity in management, in others it could be classified as crime. There are southern standards in caring for prisoners and they differ in each county. All this could be changed by having a uniform control."

Representative Charles H. Hartshorn of Gardner, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, before whom the hearing was held, demanded to know if State Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates, who would be the head of the proposed State commission, "has such a thoroughly trained force in the care of the State's prisoners that would justify me to believe that conditions would be improved?"

"I wouldn't say that," replied Bliss. "He has complete control of the State institutions now, but under our plan he would be only one of a commission of five that would have charge of the State as well as the county institutions."

Bliss read the menu of one county institution for a week. In which coffee bread and tea or bread and coffee were about all the food given the inmates for breakfast.

Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan said Mayor Curley believed some form of State control would be advantageous.

RESENTS HARDING'S FAILURE TO REPLY

New York, March 21.—"Have we reached the point where our national administration is unwilling to submit important questions of policy to the view of the public?" This question was asked today by A. H. Titus Hutkins, executive chairman of the Committee of 48, after he had admitted that President Harding had not answered the open letter addressed to him by Hopkins, asking for an investigation of reports that a British commission now in the United States would be put in possession of our military secrets of this country.

What does the Committee of 48 intend to do about it? Titus Hopkins was asked. "Fight," was the prompt reply.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Miss Elizabeth Caswell to "Star" in Vincent Show

By BETTY ALDEN.

A VERY busy member of the younger set these days is Miss Elizabeth Caswell, daughter of Mrs. John Caswell of Beacon street and Pride's Crossing. For Miss Caswell will take one of the leading parts in the Vincent Club's show, "Now and Then," scheduled for the latter part of next month, and there are daily rehearsals at the Copley-Plaza for this all-important event.

Friends of Miss Caswell expect not a little from her at the performance of "Now and Then," for everyone recalls with distinct pleasure the beauty of her "Orchid dance," one of the biggest hits of the musical comedy, "When North Meets South," given last year by the club. On that occasion Miss Caswell's exotic beauty—she is a blonde, with deep blue eyes—was set off to perfection, as the costume which she wore was that of an orchid, the softly-colored folds making a striking background.

Everyone, of course, was interested to learn just what favored belles would be selected to make up the famous drill this year, the drill being one of the leading features of the show. There will, of course, be a new setting and different costumes. It was no surprise to learn that Mrs. Augustus Thorndike Jr. (Olivia Caswell) would lead the drill, with the following girls taking part: Katherine Abbott, the older daughter of the Gordon Abbotts of Beacon street; Cornelia Fiske, whose parents are the Charles H. Fiskes of Commonwealth avenue; Sherman Evans, Pauline Fenno, Anna Thorndike, Constance Thayer, Mary Weld, as well as two of this season's leading debutantes, Ethel Cummings and Peggy Porter. Of this selected coterie the sisters of both Katherine Abbott and Cornelia Fiske have recently announced their wedding plans—Eleanor Abbott to become the bride of Francis Bacon Lothrop on April 15, while April 29 has been selected as the date for the wedding of Rosamon Fiske and Lloyd B. Sanderson, Jr.

Though Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings Barr have been making their home in New York for some time, ever since they moved their Lares and Penates from Boston, society here is still interested in their comings and goings. The Barrs, in fact, frequently visit their friends and kinsfolk in this city, where they are always most cordially welcomed.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Barr—the latter was formerly Lalla M. Griffith—were hosts at a luncheon given in their apartment at No. 11 East Sixty-eighth street for Mr. and Mrs. Walton Livingston Oakley. Among the most prominent guests were such notables as Mrs. Charles de Tham, Jr., Philip Rhinelander, Mr. and Mrs. David T. L. Van Buren, Miss Gertrude Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ogden Bacon, Baron and Baroness van Hoogland, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Prince Wladimir d'Arbeloff, William C. Bowers, 2d and Walter D. Linden.

The Barrs were among the large contingent coming over from New York for the Harvard-Yale game last Fall, and during their stay in the Hub they attended the dance which their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cummings of Beacon street, gave in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Ethel Cummings. The latter has not only been elected to take part in the Vincent Club show's drill next month, as I have noted above, but also had the distinction of being elected debutante chairman of the Junior League's provisional membership group.

After the numerous festivities in connection with the annual gridiron battle between the Crimson and the Blue came to an end, Mr. and Mrs. Barr spent some time with their cousin, Mrs. James Barr Ames, widow of the former dean of the Harvard Law School. If I remember correctly, the Barrs also came on to Boston last Fall for the Crosby-Choate nuptials, that all-important ceremonial, celebrated on the North Shore, which transformed Katherine Crosby into the bride of Robert Burnett Choate. The young couple, by the way, have just returned to Boston from a long honeymoon spent abroad.

Last Summer Mr. Barr and his wife entertained a number of Bostonians at their Southampton villa. Mr. Barr, who belongs to the Harvard '90 class, is a member of the Union and Harvard Clubs of Boston.

SEES OUTBREAK OF VIOLENCE IN INDIA

Ghose Anticipates Wave of Guerilla Warfare Within a Month

By SAILENDRA N. GHOSE, National Director American Commission to Promote Self-Government in India.

(Written Expressly for the Boston American)

Mahatma Gandhi's arrest and imprisonment will mark the end of the passive chapter and the beginning of a new one in the political situation in India. Along with Mahatma Gandhi, the "non-violence" phase of the national movement will be kept behind the iron bars in Indian politics.

Mahatma Gandhi is the only restraining influence in the Indian movement, known as the non-cooperation movement. It was Mahatma Gandhi's personality and sincere belief in the efficacy of non-violence that kept the Indian national movement non-violent. But with the absence of his influence in the deliberations of the Congress organization the violent party, the left-wingers, will have an easy sway.

But it will ask some time for this violent party to control the Congress organization. At the first meeting of the All-India Congress committee which was held just after Mahatma Gandhi's arrest, the non-violent program was again ratified after a bitter fight which lasted for eight hours. This victory was by a bare majority. It was more a work of respect to the arrested chief than an expression of opinion.

At the next meeting of the Congress committee, which will be held within a month, the violent party will have absolute sway, and from that time on will begin active warfare in India. This active warfare will be more or less along the lines of guerilla warfare and mass battle will be avoided by the Indian people as much as possible.

Mahatma Gandhi's arrest has not been followed by spontaneous outbreaks throughout India as was expected. This is not a weakness of the movement, but is a significant expression of the strength of the organization and of the wonderful discipline which we are witnessing in this movement. The violent party does exist, but is deliberately abstaining from violence and cooperating with the non-violent party through the latter have denied the violent program any time they wanted to.

This passive action of the violent party is due to the fact that they are anxious to maintain the solid front in the fight. Their premature outbreak might split the national movement.

12 VETERAN SHIPS OF WORLD WAR TO RETIRE

Washington, March 21.—Nearly a dozen "star" destroyers which saw action against enemy submarines in the North Sea in the World War are included in the 130 destroyers to be "decommissioned" by order of Secretary Denby prior to June 30. The dozen veterans, each of which proudly wears on its forward smokestack the emblem that denoted a successful bout with a German U-boat, are the Parker, Benham, O'Brien, McDougal, Cummings, Conyngham, Porter, Davis, Aaron Ward, Wadsworth and the Jacob Jones. The last listed, however is a successor to the ship of that name sunk in action in the war.

DIVORCED WIFE OF ABE ATTELL ARRESTED

Philadelphia, March 21.—Mrs. Ethel Goodwin, said to be the divorced wife of Abe Attell, former pugilist, was arrested here charged with being a member of a band of thieves that has been running wholesale robberies of big fur stores and factories through the corruption of employes of rivals' alarm protective companies. She was held in $2,000 for a further hearing March 22.

CANADIANS PROTEST ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT

Ottawa, March 21.—Provincial and city officials and business men of various parts of Canada today protested to the Acting Prime Minister, W. S. Fielding, against the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterways scheme. The protest was based largely on the ground the scheme would alienate some of the water power of Quebec.

PLOTTED SOUTH AFRICAN REPUBLIC, SAYS SMUTS

Cape Town, South Africa, March 21.—The setting up of a Soviet Republic in South Africa was the aim of the revolutionary element in the recent outbreak originating in the mining strike on the Rand, Premier Smuts told the House of Assembly. He said there had been a menace of slaughter comparable with that of the French revolution. "The country," he said, "has escaped a tremendous danger."

RUSSIA LOOKS UPON U. S. AS JAPAN ALLY

Conviction Spreads That the Treaty Would Bind Two Nations in Close Alliance

By WILLIAM HARD.
Copyright, 1922, By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, March 21. — News reaching Washington today from Siberia brings definite proof that in the Russian Far East the very things are beginning to happen that Senator Reed and other opponents of the Four-Power Treaty have been predicting in the Senate.

The last remnants of the monarchical and reactionary Russians who have been supported by European and Japanese influence are being driven out of Siberia down toward the last tip of the Russian Asiatic mainland. The forces of the Independent and anti-Japanese Russian republic at Chita are advancing rapidly toward Vladivostok and are almost face to face with the Japanese themselves.

Copies have been received in Washington of the newspaper Daine Vostochni Telegraf (meaning Far Eastern Telegraph), and also of the newspaper Daine Vostochni Put (meaning Far Eastern Way), both published in Chita, the capital of the Russian Far Eastern republic. They contain editorials on the four-power treaty and while the translations of these editorials have not yet been completed, it can be definitely said that they express the strongest suspicion of the treaty and are full of the conviction that by this treaty the United States makes itself a cat's-paw against Russia.

SEEK RUSSIAN CONCESSIONS.

These newspapers all indicate the beginning of Russian fear of America as the ally of Japan.

It happens that at this time there are certain American companies which are seeking and which are on the point of obtaining certain considerable concessions from the Far Eastern Republic in reference to gold mines and oil wells. It is believed that some of the concessions in reference to oil wells may perhaps be located in the northern half of the island of Sakhalin, which is Russian territory and which is very rich in oil.

It happens also, however, that the northern half of the island of Sakhalin is occupied at the present time by Japanese troops. Japanese troops also occupy a strip of the Russian Asiatic mainland immediately opposite the northern half of the island of Sakhalin.

The Russian Far Eastern republic now sees just two spots of Japanese occupation on Russian Siberian soil. One is in the neighborhood of Vladivostok. The other is many hundreds of miles northward in the neighborhood of the Strait of Sakhalin.

That strait is frozen over in Winter. Senator Underwood told the Senate that it was several hundred miles broad. Senator Reed, with the help of a cyclopedia, was able to correct him. It is only five miles broad. Senator Underwood said that the Russians did not have a navy with which to get over to Sakhalin. The fact is that Japan has a navy with which they can walk over to Sakhalin on the ice during any Winter. They also have dogs with which to drag them over on sleds.

CLASS US WITH JAPANESE.

A short time ago they massacred a very large number of Japanese on the mainland opposite Sakhalin. Next Winter they cross into Sakhalin and massacre a large number of Japanese there and then pushed southward till they come to what is sometimes called Southern Sakhalin they will have arrived in a Japanese insular possession which is protected by the four-power treaty. We shall be called upon to enter into communications with Japan as to "the most efficient measures for meeting the exigencies of the situation."

Perhaps the most efficient measure will be to send bombardiers to the strait between Sakhalin and the mainland and cut the Russians off from their base at Chita. In any case we shall have a special treaty bond with the Japanese and not with the Russians. The Russians foresee that result of the four-power treaty. They begin in their newspapers to class us with the Japanese.

The vouching Washington shows that their hostility toward the Japanese is getting extended into a hostility towards us.

Thus, even before the four-power treaty is ratified, we begin to get a specimen of its results.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By ALFRED STEPHEN BRYAN

Tips on Top Coats

New York, March 21.—Fashion was never less of a drillmaster than this season. Answering the question as to what particular thing is the go in Spring top coats, one might say that anything goes, and you needn't be particular. Such overgarments are close-clinging or loose-swinging; plain-collared or velvet-collared; belted, half-belted or beltless; regular-shouldered or Raglan-shouldered; longish or shortish; deep-vented or ventless.

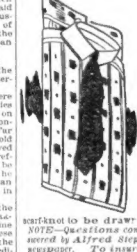
To be sure, the loose-fitting top coat is the best type for the man who must count the cost and make one garment serve for many occasions. That is because the free-swinging, unfitted coat is not so subject to strained seams and stitches as its close-fitting fellow. The whole weight rests upon the shoulders.

The spruce cut of the Raglan-shouldered coat is well shown in the accompanying picture, exhibiting a blank back. Be good enough to observe the tapering effect, starting with narrowness across the blades and terminating in full and rippled drapery at the skirts, with the sides well swung out.

The deep flip-up collar and pivot-sleeve Raglan or Mandarin shoulders and sleeves bestow a sportsmanlike air which is undeniably engaging.

Putting the Starch Back Into Shirts

In Winter the observer's eye takes a mere snapshot of your shirt, but, come Spring and Summer, it takes a time exposure. More men are beginning to recognize that the shirt is one of pivotal points of Correct Dress, and that its fineness, fit and color harmony are big, little items in the sum total.



Latterly, many of us have tired of the slough of softness into which men's fashions had slumped—limp shirts, limp collars and the like—and shirts with pleated and semi-starched bosoms seem to be by way of coming back, if not generally, at least here and there.

The shirt, reproduced here, shows one of the newer, smarter Spring patterns, scratch-work squares in brightly contrasting colors imposed upon a white ground. The front pleats are even and overlapping, and, when starched, should assume semi-stiffness, not boardlike hardness.

The collar is the low fold-over form with a front, opening wide enough to permit the scarf-knot to be drawn up right-and-tight against the band.

NOTE—Questions concerning Cor rect Dress for Men will be answered by Alfred Stephen Bryan, if addressed to him in care of this newspaper. To insure a reply, a stamped envelope must be inclosed.

SHIP LINE TO IRISH PORTS CUTS RATE

The Irish-American Steamship Line today announced that plans have been completed to run a passenger service between Boston and Cobh, in Ireland. It will cut rates to less than half of those now maintained by the North Atlantic Conference.

The British lines are surprised at the announcements the new Irish concern are making. F. F. Cutting, Boston manager of the new line, has opened offices at No. 53 State street. He said today his company realizes there will be a rush of loyal Irishmen and women to Ireland this Summer and that his company is out for the biggest share of the business.

The new line is offering round-trip tickets for first-class passage at $240. The conference minimum rate is $420 each way.

The liners Lloyd and New York, both flying the American flag, will be the first vessels to sail. The Lloyd will sail from Boston for Limerick and Sligo about April 15. Further schedules have not yet been announced.

The new line is also cutting freight rates between Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Irish ports.

MRS. MILDRED WALSH DUFFIELD GETS DIVORCE

Chicago, March 21.—Mrs. Mildred Walsh Duffield was granted a divorce February 20 last from Graham Duffield. Harvard graduate and son of the late General Henry Hartin Duffield of Detroit. The divorce recalled the "poison pen" mystery of 1903, when both Mr. and Mrs. Duffield were said to have left their fashionable home on the North Side because of letters in which someone was alleged to have caused domestic troubles. Mrs. Duffield was given the custody of her two sons, Gordon, nineteen, and Graham, Jr., fifteen.

STRIKE SHUTS LEATHER PLANT AT LOWELL

Lowell, March 21.—Three hundred employes of the local plant of American Hide and Leather Company went on strike today in protest to a 15 per cent. cut in wages. The plant is shut down. A vote to strike was taken at a meeting of the men late last night.

PEDLAR SAYS HE SOLD DRUGS TO MISS NORMAND

New York Man's Confession May Reveal Clews to Slayer of William D. Taylor

By Universal Service.

New York, March 21.—Announcement by District Attorney Banton that he had a communication from the police department informing him that Anthony "Scar Face" Gessler had confessed he supplied Mabel Normand with narcotics calls as a complete surprise to leaders in the film world here. They were inclined to ridicule Gessler's alleged confession.

Gessler was arrested Sunday and said at the time that he had sold narcotics for $150 an ounce to a film star not mentioned prominently in the murder of William D. Taylor in Los Angeles, Mr. Banton said.

"I have received from Dr. Carleton Simon of the police narcotic division information regarding the arrest of Gessler. This is a Los Angeles case, and I do not think it is my place to butt into it unless District Attorney Woolwine, who has charge of the Taylor case, wants me to take testimony for him."

The letter from Dr. Simon said in part:

"Gessler confessed to me that he had furnished Mabel Normand, motion picture actress, with narcotics. Gessler has a criminal record as a drug pedlar.

"I believe that if you should send for Gessler and question him you could secure some valuable information concerning the Taylor murder in Los Angeles."

SALE OF CHICAGO'S MASONIC TEMPLE

Chicago, March 21.—Sale of the Masonic Temple, one of the first skyscrapers in this country, was announced, the price being $3,100,000. The original cost of the building was $2,000,000. Before the days of the modern holdup, confidence men raised cash by "selling" the Masonic Temple to rural visitors. The prices varied, some being as low as $5, while others ran up to $10,000 or more.

U. S. WITHDRAWAL FROM RHINE PLEASES BERLIN

Berlin, March 21.—The German press expressed high satisfaction today over the announcement that the American army of occupation will be withdrawn from the Rhine at once. "It is a new American step towards world peace," said the Berliner Volks Zeitung.

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

Tells How He Did It.

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well-known resident of California, who was called Daddy on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

CHAMP LEONARD TOYS WITH CLINTON AT CHARITY BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

Benny Leonard proved why he is the world's lightweight champion when he easily won over Johnny Clinton in their ten-round exhibition bout at the Elks' charity show at the Boston Arena. Leonard did about everything to the New England title holder but knock him out.

For five rounds it was a perfect exhibition, with Leonard stepping back and forth with all the grace and precision of a dancing master. Clinton did not land an effective punch, while Leonard [illegible] or with a right hand drive for the body.

Beginning with the sixth session Leonard made a move of the kind to do some real fighting. He landed with some force. It looks to to the jaw, which he is fond of to the same spot on several occasions.

Apparently Leonard's tactics surprised Clinton so no real fighting spirit, and the South Paw found the local man caught Leonard on the jaw with a perfectly timed right-hand smash. And while the fans were still cheering Clinton for getting over the big punch the Roxbury Mack entry rounded with another right hand wallop to the same spot. He continued to force the advantage in the frame and took an extra [illegible]

The seventh was the only session that ended in Clinton's favor. In the other sessions Leonard was so far out front as Fine Bluth is each year in the heelie home run race.

White Benny was satisfied to take things easy in the early part of the bout, he made a desperate effort to score a knockout by rushing with his eighth round. He rocked Clinton with his left and right hand socks. On several occasions he knocked the New England champion through the ropes, but Clinton always managed to regain admittance. He also kept his feet at all times.

BROOKLINE HIGH CREW WANTS TO OWN CUP

By FRED C. LANE.

In Boston schoolboy rowing circles there is no more earnest group of candidates than the 105 lads of the Brookline High, who reported for crew practice to Coach Nicolls.

Brookline wants to own the B. F. Keith trophy. For nine years Brookline boys have had the benefit of instruction from Coach Nicolls, who has served without compensation and has developed what Harvard, Princeton and Yale coaches admit is two legs on the trophy.

The Phrase "All Aboard"

THE origin of the phrase "going on board" can be traced back to the Icelandic, and it was probably introduced into Anglo-Saxon by Vikings. In the original tongue board was understood to mean the side of a ship, and was so first employed.

"Oh, no—everybody is nice to us. Have we any things which—women of his family — perhaps would not do."

"Smoke?"

"Yes. Cocktails, too. Also we gamble, dreadfully."

"Wouldn't his people?"

"I don't know," said the girl. "I don't know New York. One reads about these rather harmless vices [illegible] there. But . . . one and I are really provincial. [illegible] usually go too far in either direction. It was only that I did not wish people to judge Mr. Edgerton from us." Mr. Rivett scraped the gravel with his cane for a moment, then: "Are you like Inwood?"

"Very much."

"Wasn't he mixed up in some mess or other?"

"I never heard so," she said, guardedly. "What was he doing in Korea?"

She Laughed

She laughed. "Visiting, as we were, I suppose. You know we weren't being divorced."

"Glad to hear it."

"You didn't think so?" she exclaimed.

His eyes twinkled.

"No," he said, "I didn't. But you can't throw a stone into a crowd and give odds on its not hitting a divorced person."

"Does divorce shock you?"

"Not in the least. I'm past shocking, young lady. Who is Mrs. Wetzel?"

"Your own guest!"

He winced. "I'm asking you. We made her acquaintance at the Plaza last Winter. . . . It seems that she and young Inwood knew each other in Kiel."

"That is where I've seen her!" said Diana with innocent conviction. "I knew I'd seen her somewhere. . . . But she was very much slighter—oh, very much—and extremely pretty."

"Divorce did that?"

"Isn't she a widow?"

"I guess so. . . . No matter." He stood up briskly, she rose, too, understanding that the interview was ended — feeling slightly uncomfortable because she had permitted her self to be so thoroughly pumped. But there seemed to be nothing significant in the operation or results.

"I'm going for a ride with my wife"—he meant drive—"just a buggy and an old pair. She and I enjoy it. Mine Tennant."

To her surprise he took her hand between his own dry little palms and pressed it.

"You're a good girl," he said. "You and I might agree, after [illegible] to tell [illegible] each other [illegible] tree, little and—out off the sand old block in the beginning—that's plain, as preaching. Do you really like my Christine?"

"Yes, I do."

"And Jack?"

"Exceedingly."

"That's right; they like you, too. They ought to. They're good children, and so are you. Good-by."

As Diana put her foot to a full gallop and rode [illegible] her mind [illegible] of [illegible] fellow lay sprawling on the sod.

He was on his feet immediately, as was his pony. When Diana pulled up, whirled her mount and came surveying back, Edgerton had picked up his mallet and [illegible] and was in the saddle.

"All right, Jim!" she asked briefly.

"All right, thanks!"

The color had left his face under the tan, and his expression was queer.

"You look rather white," she said, [illegible] "Jim, I'm sorry."

"It's nothing," he said, smiling. "Put Jack in, I've got some tools to [illegible] talk over with Mr. Rivett."

"You're sure you're all right?"

"What a fuss you are!" he said, leading Dapnip across the road toward a groom.

The girl looked after him, saw the groom slip a white wool polo coat over the pony, man a shoulders and take the pony, saw Edgerton drop his hands into the pockets and stroll across the field toward the terrace then, lifting her mallet, she hailed Jack Rivett in a clear, ringing call, and cantered up field.

As Mr. Rivett, senior, stood waiting for his wife at the foot of the terrace steps, wrapped in his old-fashioned linen duster and pulling on a pair of worn driving gloves, Edgerton, in white from head to foot, came across the lawn, the youthful antithesis of the older man—tall, powerfully built, his smooth skin and short, thick hair burned by the Summer sun—a graceful, leisurely figure agreeable to see on anybody's lawn.

"Good morning!" he said pleasantly, stopping on the gravel drive.

"Good morning, Mr. Edgerton. Are the young people amusing themselves?"

"I think so—thoroughly."

Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson.

Diana from the depths of a chair watched the city lights, always with a hope that died and lived with her unquiet breathing.

"You came a cropper?"

"I sometimes do."

"You are amusing yourself?"

"I always do."

"So do I," nodded Rivett, buttoning his gloves. "Never was bored in my life—poor compliment to oneself, Mr. Edgerton, to find life a bore."

Edgerton smiled and stood with his left hand in his coat pocket, looking out at the flat [illegible] pond, where half a dozen young people on three punts among [illegible] material [illegible] about to [illegible] of practice.

The [illegible] seem to be up to [illegible] committed Rivett.

"I [illegible] were bred to everything worth [illegible]."

"Isn't [illegible] worth while, as you call it?"

"Do you wish to start such a complex discussion?" asked Edgerton, laughing.

"No; my wife will be here in a moment. . . . You're looking very pale, young man," he added abruptly. "Did that pony hurt you?"

"A little. . . . Mr. Rivett, do you need my services any longer?"

Needed Nobody

"I don't need anybody's services," said the little man dryly. "I never needed anybody in all my life—except my wife. There's no such thing as a necessary man. No man ever lived who really [illegible] regretted. . . . What's the matter?"

Edgerton said slowly: "I thought I'd go back to town and hunt up a job."

"Why?"

"Because there's no reason for my being here. There never was any reason. You knew it when I asked you to take me, but I didn't . . . I didn't know you and your family."

"That's a compliment, isn't it?"

"It is just the truth. I'm glad my cousins are with you. . . . I'd like to go back now."

"Tired of us?"

"You don't have to ask that."

"More compliments," said Rivett. "What is wrong, then?"

"I am."

"Hadn't noticed it."

Edgerton smiled faintly. "More compliments? . . . Mr. Rivett, I want to go to town and hunt up a job, and get in the game. That's all."

"Can't you wait a month and see us through the October shooting?"

Edgerton stepped nearer.

"I would merely because you ask me; but I really want to get away quickly and not [illegible] easily. . . . I've broken my nose."

Mr. Rivett swung sharply and his eyes [illegible].

"What?" he demanded.

"That's all. I just [illegible] down to town and have it fixed up. I don't see anything about it until I've left."

"Won't you stay here and let us look after you?"

"I never could say that. You've been very nice to me. Ask me again in a month, if [illegible] be good to me and if you care [illegible]."

Mr. Rivett's unchanging eyes watched him.

"I'll see you, Mr. wife [illegible] I don't want to [illegible] with a man who knows [illegible] I don't [illegible] want the [illegible]." His white lips were compressed.

"Yes," he said.

"I've a small stop at Fern Centre. Billings can reduce the fracture."

"Are you going with me?"

"I [illegible] am," said the elder man.

With a valet's aid he got free his clothes. His swollen wrist [illegible] in a sling.

"I won't bother the others now. [illegible] Mrs. Rivett when we [illegible] to [illegible] I didn't know you and your family."

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

To lose one's savings through unfortunate stock market ventures has a tendency to make one feel bitter not only against the whole financial scheme of things, but against the world and mankind in general. It makes one sour. It makes one feel that the world is full of dishonest people and run on dishonest lines. The total of fact upon the loser's soul is likely to be even more serious than the effect upon his or her pocketbook.

Of course, no human agency, no laws, no regulations can safeguard foolish and greedy people against their own foolishness and their own greed. And the truth is that the great bulk of the losses sustained by dabblers in tenthrate stocks arise from these two causes, foolishness and greed. The motive which inspires a great many persons of small means to take "flyers" in stock speculation is that world-old one, to thrive by reap without sowing, to get a big return for little or no effort, to become rich in a hurry.

After all this has been said, however, it behooves every responsible citizen associated with the world of finance and business to do everything possible to reduce the risks run, knowingly or unknowingly, by those of small means and still smaller knowledge of things financial.

I have just received a letter from one unfortunate who had small accounts with no fewer than five firms that have recently failed. Here is one sentence which respectable stock exchange firms should ponder:

"I HAVE TRIED TO GET SEVERAL NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE FIRMS TO BUY FROM ONE TO TEN SHARES OF DIFFERENT STOCKS FOR ME ON THE PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN, BUT THEY INFORMED ME THAT THEY WERE NOT INTERESTED IN ACCOUNTS OF THIS SORT."

Having had his business refused by decent stock exchange houses, he turned to other brokers who were that welcomed any and every kind of account. With the result that this unhappy eddie dabbler in stocks has lost heavily.

Will it occur to any of the New York Stock Exchange houses who turned away such a customer that they are in any way responsible for the unhappy consequences?

If by refusing to accept small partial-payment accounts, particularly when the partial purchases embrace non-dividend paying stocks, high-grade stock exchange firms could stop small speculators or investors from entering the security market until they had accumulated enough money to pay the full cash price for their purchases, then stock exchange firms could consider themselves thoroughly justified in refusing to touch picayune partial-paying accounts.

But what the refusal of the stock exchange firms actually does, nine times in ten, is to drive the prospective purchaser into the clutches of unscrupulous brokerage firms of the shoe-string and fly-by-night species. There are doubtless thousands and thousands of people who have done exactly as the writer of this letter did. Naturally, they approached a reputable stock exchange firm and, on being given the cold shoulder, ran pellmell to firms such as have been failing in large numbers lately.

Is this attitude on the part of stock exchange firms long sighted or short sighted?

Admittedly, the expense of handling these small accounts is relatively large. The clerical work involved often is out of all proportion with the commissions earned. It calls for large, and therefore expensive, office space, together with a heavy volume of this kind of business. And there are other drawbacks.

Yet would it be asking too much of responsible stock exchange firms to consent to handle at least a moderate proportion of this business, not because of any profit in it, but as a sort of public service, seeing what the comprehensive of refusing to handle such business usually are.

It would be extremely helpful, I believe, if the New York Stock Exchange authorities caused it to become known all over the country that, on request, they would furnish inquirers with a list of stock exchange members willing to fill even the smallest orders on the instalment payment plan.

I constantly receive letters asking me to give the names and addresses of thoroughly trustworthy firms prepared to handle this kind of business. Since the demand exists, would it not be well to recognize it and deal with it in a way calculated to prevent losses of the most certain to be incurred when the demand is switched to unscrupulous brokerage houses.

* * *

Most of [illegible] to courses of our business do [illegible] or no immediate [illegible] profit, we do them through [illegible] rather than through narrow, selfish motives. Banks, for example, often accept very small accounts, not because of any profit in them, but through a feeling of public duty—supplemented, very often, by the hope that the small, unprofitable account will in time develop into a large, profitable one.

NEW HAVEN LED RAILS IN N. Y. TRADING

Motors and Equipments Finish Strong; Market Not So Active; No Big Feature

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The majority of stocks were showing gains in New York at the closing, although some offered to give the list a mixed appearance. Steels, oils, and rails were irregular. Trading was not on less volume than for several days, but approximated a million shares for the period. The feature was no big feature to today transactions.

New Haven closed at 19¾, its high for the day. It was up 2¾. Pullman also finished at its best price, rising 1¾ to 120⅝. Other gains included Lima Locomotive, 4¾ to 30¾; Manhattan Shirt, ¾ at 27⅝, after selling as high as 28¾; Baldwin, 1 at 107¾, Westinghouse, ¾ at 40¾, at 42⅞, after selling at 43⅛, and 123⅜, and Studebaker 1¾ at 104⅜, after touching 105⅛. Crucible fell off ¾ at 56⅜. U. S. Steel was down ⅝ at 91.

After a firm opening the market eased off and became irregular under realizing sales by professional traders who have been operating of late on the bull side. In quarters usually credited the forenoon and prices got to the lowest level of the session. There was a midday rally and it lasted into the afternoon or until call money, which had opened at 4 per cent, was quoted at 4½ per cent. This encouraged bears to put out short lines, but they failed to weaken the market to any great extent.

Strongest issues included Mexican Petroleum, Manhattan Shirt, and Baldwin. They were up a point or more. During the forenoon American Ice, Coca Cola and Lima Locomotive sold at new record highs, while issues to attain their highest for more than a year were Gold, Colt, Johnson, Bethlehem B, Midvale, Studebaker and Fisher Body. Willys Overland and New Haven sold at new highs for 1922 to date. New Haven was an afternoon feature, being the strongest rail. It showed more than two points. Texas Gulf Sulphur fell more than two and Crucible more than a point.

Foreign exchange rates were mixed in moderately, sterling and marks going down.

Rallied After a Reaction at Noon

Copyright, 1922, by Consolidated Press Association.

By MUNROE

New York, March 21.—In many respects the action of today's stock market was exact duplication of its predecessors. After a steady opening, in which the industrials and the specialties gained while the rails and motors slightly receded, the market encountered a period of disappointing weakness at noon, from which it swung into the final hour, characterized by strength and activity. The principal buying power was in motors, oils and industrials, in which issues declined 1 to 3 points once more left behind as new high prices were registered.

Money rates firmed up in the afternoon. Call money, after opening at 3½ rose to 4 per cent, and time money was slightly higher at 4¾ for 30 and 60 days. Evidently the firmer money was a point in favor of the bears, but their offerings were promptly snapped up that no general decline in the market was made by their selling tactics.

Foreign Bonds Led in Market Activity

By MUNROE ROBERTS

Copyright, 1922, by Consolidated Press Association.

New York, March 24.—The great bond activity in today's bond market was in the division of foreign government bond issues and the most active of the foreign issues dealt in was the French Government 8 per cents, and the United Kingdom 5½'s. A better reception is also being accorded the Mexican Government 5's and 4's on the belief that the flow of revenue there is gradually attaining a position of stability and that her outstanding bonds will not be treated as scrap of paper.

Liberty Bonds were inactive but strong, with the Victory 4¾'s and the Fourth 4¼'s in high ground.

In the railroad activity was noted in St. Paul convertible 4½'s and 5's.

Industrial bonds were irregular. The Consolidated 7's selling off ½ to 100 as compared with a recent high of 101½. Traction issues were dull and inclined to lower prices.

Low-Priced Oils Feature the Curb.

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 21.—The low priced oils featured the Curb market at the opening today. Carib sold at 4 up ⅛ and Simms sold ⅛ willing to common lost fractionally at 67⅜. Rolland Oil was down ⅛ at 4⅛. Anglo-American Corporation continued its rise to 23¾.

Metal Market

New York, March 21.—Metal prices were lower, spot, March and April, copper 13½ to 13¾. Lead, spot, March and April, 6.50 to 6.60. Zinc, Sandard 4.25 and March, 4.10 to 4.20. Spot offered 4.25 and March, 4.10 to 4.20.

Chicago Grain Market

By Cosmopolitan News Service

Chicago, March 21.—Support dropped out of all the grain markets on the Board of Trade early today, prices slipping sharply lower and touching with little resistance until after stop loss orders had been uncovered and resting orders to buy had been filled in bulk. Trading in coarse grains was probably the most depressing factor in the wheat market. Commission houses were on both sides of the wheat market during the early session, but the buying power did not last. Trade in corn was fairly large. Scattered selling by tired longs lumbled prices for this grain fast. Cash corn offered with the futures, after opening fairly steady.

Casts followed other grains lower, but the trade in July and September oats by a prominent firm with Eastern connections was probably the centre of early trading.

Provisions eased in sympathy with the downturn in grains and hogs. Hogs at the yards ruled slow and 10 cents lower.

Opening prices were: Wheat—May, 1.68 to 1.75⅛; July, 1.20⅝ to 1.20⅞; Sept., 1.07 as compared with a range of 1.07 to 1.15⅛; Sept., 66⅝. Oats—May, 38⅝; July, 40⅝; Sept., 40¾.

Closing prices were: Wheat—May, 1.74⅞ to 1.75; July, 1.19 to 1.17⅞; September, 1.06⅝ to 1.06⅞. Corn—May, 67⅝ to 68; July, 70⅜ to 70⅝; September, 70⅜ to 70½. Oats—May, 37⅝ to 38⅛; July, 39⅝ to 39¾; September, 39⅝ to 39¾. Lard—May, 10.92; July, 10.97; September, 11.07. Ribs—May, 10.80; July, 13.22.

'MAIN STREET' WHOLESOME DRAMA

Alma Tell Scores Triumph in Stage Version of Lewis Novel

Occasionally a play filled with good, wholesome fun, intensive moments and excellent acting comes along. Such is "Main Street," which opened last night at the Wilbur Theatre.

The play is by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, and is founded on the novel of the same name by Sinclair Lewis. Mr. Lewis, in his novel, pictured the American small town, perfectly. He touched the hearts of the American people. The play does the same.

It is picturesque, amusing, wholesome and is skilfully staged.

Those who have read the novel by Mr. Lewis know that it deals with the struggle of Carol, the wife of a small town physician, who wants to change over the makeup of the town and its people. She wants to do big things. Have a new town hall, dramatic club and what not. She is an idealist—a dreamer. Her husband is a big, good-natured country doctor who is worship by his wife, but who can't get away from the practical. She cannot understand him.

She is snubbed and insulted at first all in the town with the exception of one young man, Erik Valborg, whose reformation is refreshing. Sybil Field is a better little daughter than the misunderstood maiden, and Frances Loughton is acceptable as the young daughter. Juveniles are played by John Adair, Jr., and Frank Herbert with more or less success.

The action drags a bit, but there is enough comedy throughout to make the play worth seeing. The electrical absurdities are interesting and the settings are adequate.

Other Theatres

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—"A Stage Romance," the Fox photoplay which began a week's engagement at Loew's Orpheum yesterday, amply shies greatly the magnetic personality of William Farnum, its star. The picture provides a thrilling personality and refrains from overtaking on mannerisms. Harry Myers, leader of "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," and "Pal o' V. F.," shines in the role of Gilly, the cowboy. Peggy Shaw his beam as far as usual. The fault lies, it seems to me, in the limitations rather than in the player. Muggsy has more to do and does it well. Unfortunately his name was finished on quickly and I don't recall it.

CONNOLLY DOES WELL.

Alice Terry has the comparatively small part of Elsie Terwilliger, the heroine, and plays it tonelessly and unconvincingly. She is always lovely to look at—but her acting leaves much to be desired. However, the role called for little. Edward Connolly does excellently as the fussy old miser, Terwilliger. While Lydia Knott also does well for her playing of Mrs. Buscom.

The settings are artistic—almost to an extreme. The country scenes are always shrouded in a misty light, so that the very sunlight looks artificial and the backgrounds are misty. One has the confused feeling that it is all a dream, not even a movie.

What Do These Senators Expect?

How Can Brandegee, Moses and McCormick Vote Consistently for Four-Power Treaty?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Brandegee, of Connecticut; Moses, of New Hampshire; McCormick, of Illinois—these Senators are expected to vote for the Four-Power Treaty this week. How can they do it?

There are excuses for Lodge, a seasoned partisan; for Underwood, an orderly of Wall Street; for New, a mere mouthpiece of the Administration. But none of these excuses applies to Brandegee, Moses and McCormick. These men are free and know better. They not only know better, they privately admit they know better. Yet by their public action on the Treaty they are expected to belie their knowledge and betray their convictions. Why?

Because they are Republicans, because they wish to preserve Republican unity, because they put party unity above national safety, because they would rather imperil their country than divide their party. That is all—nothing more.

Knowing the truth, understanding that the Four-Power Treaty binds the United States as firmly as did the covenant which they once denounced, realizing that it entangles the United States in such an alliance as they once fought, admitting that it commits the United States to war as fully and plainly as did Article X of the covenant which they repudiated, they nevertheless are counted on to smother their reason, strangle their consciences and assent to that betrayal of their country's welfare which they view with abhorrence.

When, we should like to know, did party rise so far above country in the esteem of these gentlemen? And who assures them that by sacrificing country they will help the Republican organization? Have they no memory? Have they already forgotten the campaign of 1920? Have they forgotten how the Republican leaders at headquarters in 1920 tried to suppress the issue presented by the League of Nations?

Have they forgotten how the Republican speakers were sent out to discuss war costs, government waste, taxes and tariff—anything but the League? Above all, have they forgotten how the people refused to be led away from the issue, how they took it into their own hands, how they demanded from speakers the discussion of the League, would not be satisfied with anything else, and finally crowned the campaign with an overwhelming repudiation of the covenant, its alliances, its commitments to war, and all the men who stood with, by or for them?

Why were Johnson and Borah the most sought speakers in the campaign? Why, neglected at first, were they called upon so urgently by Republican headquarters for help as the campaign proceeded? Because Johnson and Borah were the most aggressive foes of League and covenant, because they had denounced most loudly the wars and alliances for which the League and covenant stood, and because the people wanted to hear the League denounced and the alliances repudiated by the men who denounced them most bodly, repudiated them most courageously.

That is not political theory; it is political experience. It is the campaign record of 1920. Senator Brandegee knows it; Senator Moses knows it; best of all, Senator McCormick knows it.

Do these men think that the people who refused to shut their eyes to this issue two years ago can be blinded to it now? Do they believe that the people will indorse in 1922 and 1924 what they utterly rejected in 1920? Do they imagine that it will unify and strengthen the Republican party to reject the principles and policies on which the Republicans won in 1920 and to adopt the policies and principles on which the Democrats lost?

Are the 16,000,000 who voted against foreign wars and alliances in 1920 ready to vote for them now? Are they ready to vote for candidates—Senatorial candidates—who preach what they repudiated two years ago and repudiate what they then preached? If Senators Brandegee, Moses, McCormick and other Republicans of their kind believe these things possible, a great revelation awaits them.

No false issue can survive the war and tear off a great national campaign. The lying sophistries that are woven around the Four-Power Treaty will be torn away. Those who proclaim them and those who assent to them will be exposed. The history of 1920 will be repeated—let no man doubt it.

Even in politics the truth does not die—16,000,000 Americans do not forget.

Our Money Paid Bonuses to Foreigners

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Enumerating half a dozen sound reasons for giving the soldiers their bonus, W. R. Hearst gives the following as No. 3:

THIRD, because England and France and most of the allies engaged in the great war have paid their soldiers bonuses, and have paid these bonuses out of OUR money.

And there seems to be no good reason why we should not use some of our money to pay our own soldiers a bonus instead of providing it so liberally to other nations to pay THEIR soldiers bonuses. W. R. HEARST.

Men that control the money of the country and got billions of it out of profitable contracts in war tell you the nation cannot possibly AFFORD to pay the soldiers the bonus due them.

What a yell there would be from "conservative patriots" if you suggested giving three thousand dollars to every man that spent two years in the army. Yet three thousand dollars is not as much as the average man lost in actual hard cash because of their serving the country while others were getting rich.

Because they went into the army, fought for the country AND WON THE WAR, the young service men were each automatically deprived of a large sum of money that would have been theirs had they stayed home. The country will not make up to them what they lost, and they do not ask it. But they do ask and they are ENTITLED to have a decent, reasonable bonus. "Bonus," by the way, is a poor name for it. It is really a partial adjustment of pay for the time that men were compelled to work practically for nothing. Property confiscated in war is paid for. Why not pay for the time of young men, which is their property?

Young men were paid one dollar a day by a generous government. It is putting it mildly to say that they could have averaged seven dollars a day at war wages. The difference, six dollars a day, would have meant thirty-six hundred dollars in two years.

Plan to Furnish Meat to New England at Cost

Commissioner Hultman Suggests a Public Slaughterhouse and Public Conveyances for Bringing Cattle From Western Markets

Commissioner on the Necessaries of Life Hultman has rendered a great public service and called public attention to the fact that in New England we are paying more for meat than they are paying anywhere else in the country. But his greatest public service is his constructive suggestion concerning a way to cure this unfavorable and unjust situation.

He suggests that we have a public slaughterhouse and that we obtain public conveyances for the cattle from the West. We suppose that he means refrigerator cars, owned and operated by the State, so that State officials can go out and buy the cattle and bring them here and slaughter them, and sell the meat to the public at cost.

He makes these recommendations because he believes that the Beef Trust, assuming an inexhaustible patience on the part of the people of New England, is exploiting us.

A legislative committee has been appointed to consider Mr. Hultman's suggestions. We presume now that the lobby of the Beef Trust and its lawyers will become exceedingly busy.

Study History as It Is Made

Discussion of the Daily News in the Schools a Most Excellent Idea

William MacAndrew, associate superintendent of New York city schools, lecturing before high school teachers at Boston University, urged the more widespread discussion of current events—the daily news—in classrooms. He said:

> The method of teaching current events is going to benefit not only the student, but also you teachers. I find I must keep in touch with every problem possible, and what better way than through classroom discussion of current topics? By the discussion of modern problems in our high school classes a natural atmosphere of giving information is created.

This excellent idea cannot be carried too far. It emphasizes the recognized fact that the daily newspaper, alone chronicling news events up to the minute, is the great educator of all time.

In this case what fits the classroom applies equally well to grown men and women. When young folk drop their schoolbooks, the newspaper becomes their chief instructor, teaching and encouraging them to think.

Mr. MacAndrew's advice is fundamentally sound. Study history as it is made, fresh from the speeding presses, cried by eager newsboys.

Read much, if you would know much, and never allow yourself to fall behind the day's events.

Crime the Price of Shelter

Must a Penniless Stranger Be Refused Succor by Our City Because He Has Broken No Law?

Must a penniless stranger within our gates commit crime in order to obtain a night's shelter? That question is pertinent in the light of the following incident of the past week.

A man, emaciated of form and weak from exposure and hunger, entered a Boston police station during the progress of a heavy storm and asked for shelter for the night. He was not a panhandler. He informed the police he would rather die than beg. His appearance and speech bespoke refinement.

The official behind the desk sent the man back into the storm, informing him that as he had broken no law he could not be given lodging.

Shortly after leaving the station the man was found by a newspaper reporter in a doorway. He was barely conscious. At the behest of the reporter he was given hospitality by the Salvation Army, and stilted officialdom knew not whether he had perished.

On more than one occasion the cutting of red tape has saved the day. The red tape responsible for the present demand of our officialdom that a man who seeks shelter must first commit crime should be cut, and cut at once. Otherwise truthful publicity men must spread abroad that only he who breaks our laws is welcome at our board.

An Amusing Notice

Edison Electric Company Advises Its Customers of a Reduction in Rates

The following is a note which the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has sent to its lighting customers:

THE EDISON ELECTRIC ILLUMINATING COMPANY OF BOSTON

Auditor's Office, 39 Boylston Street

To Customers of the Company

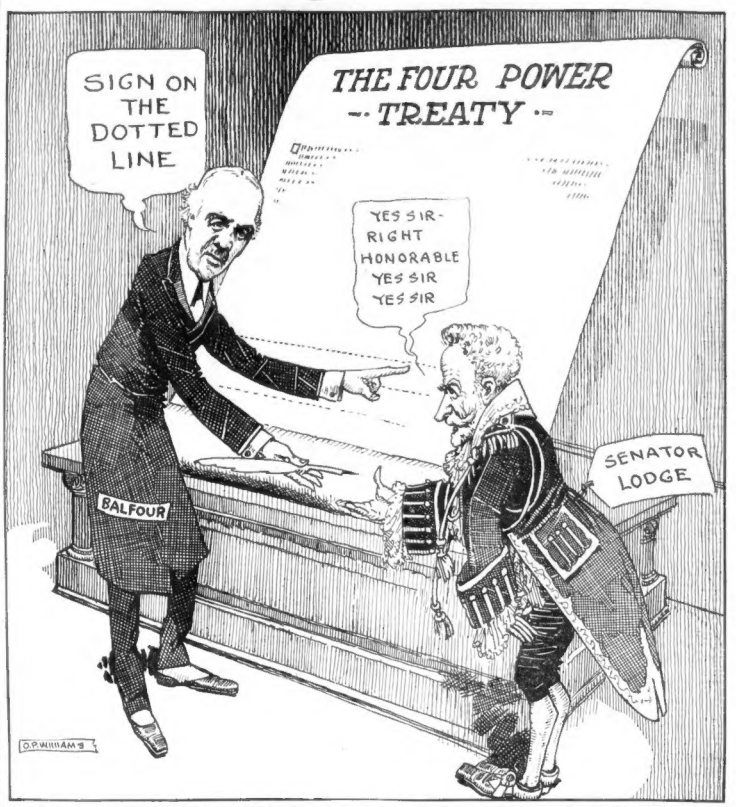
Taking Service Under Rate Schedule "A":

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, in accordance with its consistent policy of reducing rates whenever possible, hereby announces that the coal clause charge and the 5 per cent. increase which have applied to customers taking service under rate Schedule "A," will be cancelled on all meter readings made subsequent to February 28, 1922.

The rate thereafter will be ten cents (10c.) per kilowatt hour.

We should be grateful for small favors, and it is indeed somewhat of a favor to be made to laugh in these hard times and this trying season.

Taking His Orders



Somebody's Birthday

Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

PEOPLE born during the period of March 21st to April 19th under the sign of the Zodiac, Aries, are in general earnest, aggressive and dominant. They are usually leaders, if not actually in charge of the situation in which they find themselves.

They are intensely able to take command in moments of change. They are the great leaders created by sudden necessities. They have a deep nobility of purpose and ar generous both in thought and in action, but somewhat inclined to instantaneous anger and impetuosity.

If today is the anniversary of your birth, your astral influences will have their source in both the signs Pisces and Aries and you should have the better qualities of both signs.

You have a fine sympathy for people and a quick understanding of their motives and feelings. You should have an unusual quantity of friends for you are always a good friend to one in need and your loyalty knows no swerving.

Travel during the year will be extensive. However, certain threatened business loss may deter you, but new scenes are written for you.

A child born today has a splendid outlook, not only physically but mentally and if properly guided from early youth should make a name for himself.

Famous persons born today:

Bach, Musician.

Cyrenus Wheeler, Inventor.

Theodore N. Gill, Naturalist.

Lewis M. Haupt, Civil Engineer.

WE ALL TAKE STOCK IN LIDDY AND HIS KIND

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

ARTHUR BRISBANE appears to have achieved the alchemist's ambition to transmute all the baser metals into gold.

By gift of mind and power of speech, he is able to take the simplest, apparently barren, item of news and translate it into terms of vital, human worth.

Here, for instance, he finds a report of the death of James E. Liddy. He guesses rightly that most of us had never heard of Liddy. Then he tells you to think of him tonight as you go to bed. For Liddy is the man who invented the spring bed!

Says Brisbane, Liddy deserves gratitude, for he has given peaceful sleep to hundreds of millions and ought to have a monument.

Yes, indeed! If blessings are to be perpetually invoked for him who first invented sleep, then surely in these unquiet days, when we need almost to be wooed and won for slumberland, we should gladly give thanks to the man who re-established the reign of Morpheus, by inventing the spring bed.

Mr. Brisbane also proposes a first-class monument for George M. Pullman. That suggests to Mr. Brisbane either a callousness of conscience or a sleep-ability immune to the cribbing and confinement of a Pullman berth.

Of course, a Pullman berth is as much more restful than sitting up all night as Liddy's spring bed is preferable to a Jacob's stony pillow for a head rest.

Sleep on Rocks

Though Jacob and others have been known to sleep on rocks and dream of angels!

However, we have no quarrel with Brisbane or Pullman. On the contrary, we gladly take stock in both institutions. And as for Liddy, the whole world of men is bound to take grateful stock in him and his kind.

To be reminded, by the alchemic Arthur Brisbane, of our debt to James E. Liddy stirs one's imagination to the asking point regarding the inventors and makers of that great and good company of comforts which give such ease to the poorest modern life.

Too easily we press a button, pull a string, turn a clock, or push a wheel, and expect "the rest" to happen!

The writer is pleased to compliment himself because for one, he never rides in a motor car without marvelling at the uncanny skill which went into the production of a machine of such combined power and sensitiveness.

Nor does he ever witness a motion picture—without wondering over the mere mechanics of the photography which so startlingly reproduce movement upon a flat screen.

Having thus complimented himself, he yields to the impulse to urge his readers to go and do likewise, to cultivate a similar responsiveness of appreciation to the inventors and workers who have contributed to the mechanical marvel of the life of our time.

"What a piece of work is a man!"

Monument by All Means

A monument to James E. Liddy? By all means! And we might even melt the metal that has gone into the making of the statues of several "statesmen," generals and colonels, who cooperated towards giving eternal sleep to our splendid soldier boys, and use it for a monument to the man whose invention gives sweet soundness to our nightly rest.

In our hearts, too, we might build whole avenues of monuments to the host of inventors—most of them unknown—who have made possible the solid satisfactions, the substantial comforts, the infinite variety, and the subtle beauty of our life.

Fortunately, there is plenty of room in each of us for these spiritual tributes—these monuments not made of metal or stone —invisible tributes of appreciation for the visible objects of use, comfort, and beauty which have added immeasurably to the general joy in living.

It is well to cultivate in yourself an increasing delicacy of appreciation for all the contributions, large and little, to your satisfactions and enjoyments.

The properly responsive person, in reacting to natural phenomena, is impressed not only by the gorgeous sunset and the terrible thunder, but by the marvel of the meanest flower that blows and the wonder of a single blade of grass.

So also your appreciation of human inventiveness should not be limited to an Edison and an automobile, but should easily extend to a Liddy and the spring bed.

And so on, to the simplest addition to your comfort and the slightest extension of your power.

Aviators to Study Birds

LONDON, March 21.—Pilots of commercial aircraft are to be asked to co-operate in solving some of those mysteries of bird life which have so long baffled all efforts of naturalists.

Airmen of the Continental expressses will, it is hoped, throw light on such fascinating subjects as the height at which huge flocks of birds fly when migrating to other lands, and what altitude they are able to attain in flight. They will also help in elucidating the speed of our feathered friends and in unveiling secrets that have baffled poets and scientists for thousands of years.

Strangely enough, birds viewed man's intrusion into the heavens with an almost calm indifference. This disregard for human eccentricity is the way of nature.

Ex Libris

—By Zoe B. Faber—

F. SCOTT FITZGERALD created quite a ripple when he came out with "This Side of Paradise," and now, with the coming of Spring, he blossoms forth with "The Beautiful and Damned."

"The Beautiful and Damned" recites the long, long tale of a youth of today who is too lazy, too indifferent or too incapable to get out and earn a living for himself and the wife whom he takes unto himself early in the book. She is much the same type of social and financial parasite that he is, and they make a pair that are little short of insufferable.

The atmosphere throughout is one of highballs, inane parties, selfish wives and stupid husbands, and yet, in spite of the foregoing, F. Scott Fitzgerald has written a book that is interesting and one that many people will read. He has been clever in giving it a "selling title"—a point not to be overlooked if one is to market successfully a book that is nothing more than a fill-in for a couple of idle hours.

It strikes us that Mr. Fitzgerald is capable of far better things than he has launched in "The Beautiful and Damned." Perhaps if he did not write so fast he would have things of more account to say.
